$200,000 awaits girl who vanished

OAKLAND (AP) — A high school girl who vanished two years ago can collect a $200,000 inheritance if she returns home, her parents say.

Lisa Anne Beery, then 15, disappeared on Jan. 26, 1974 while on her way to cash a $30 baby sitting check.

The check never was cashed, and authorities say the girl left no hint that she planned to run away.

Police believe there was foul play, yet her parents cling to the belief that she is alive somewhere, possibly with a religious cult.

Lisa stands to collect $200,000 in trust from the life insurance policy of a great-grandmother who died three months after the disappearance, her parents said Monday.

"If she's still alive, she would have turned 18 on April 28 and can now have the money," said her father, John Beery.

"We want her to know that the money is there," said Beery, a yacht broker and real estate developer. "We didn't think she would come home before she was 18."

He said he believes Lisa is probably living with a religious group.

"She was very active in a fundamentalist church and she was into meditation," he explained. "And she was an extraordinary kind of girl.

Police investigator Mary Hillyard said Lisa has been on the missing persons list longer than any juvenile currently on it.

"Her case is still under active consideration," she said. "We've had some firm tidbits of clues that her father has grasped onto, but we are more skeptical."

The investigator said that Beery's theory that Lisa joined a religious group is "not one of the firmer options we have."

"We believe there was some sort of foul play," she added. "Lisa had friends she would have communicated with. She was in a close group at school, and had no firm problems from which to run."

Lisa's parents currently are taking steps to be named conservators of the inheritance. And Beery says that if his daughter fails to claim the money within seven years of her disappearnce, he will probably donate it to the Oakland public schools.

Hurricane rips chaotic path

Flash floods pose problems in parts of New England

NEW YORK (AP) — Hurricane Belle's path of heavy rain and battering wind sliced Long Island at its widest point, flooding thousands of homes and businesses and leaving many more without power.

Towns along the island's south shore were buffeted first — Long Beach, Babylon, Islip all reporting extensive flooding.

At Long Beach to the west of the storm's core, waves tore holes in wooden beach barricades and flooded roads. Trees and power lines were down in East Meadow and Baldwin. About 3,000 residents of Babylon were evacuated, the village dock was under water and store windows were blown out.

In Islip, about 2,000 persons were evacuated, including some from the Good Samaritan Hospital in West Islip where the first floor was flooded. Many roads in the town were impassable from flooding or fallen trees, and the ocean washed over the barrier reef at two points, Atlantique and Robin's Rest.

In Brookhaven, east of Belle's powerful center, 900 persons evacuated to William Floyd High School at Mastic were without lights or water when the power went off.

Working its way inland, the hurricane left occupants of 5,000 homes in Freeport without power and 25 elderly persons were evacuated from their flooded homes.

There was serious flooding at Huntington on the island's north, and about 200 persons were evacuated from the community of Asharoken and trees and power lines were down throughout the town.

Flash flooding in the wake of Hurricane Belle, now a tropical storm, posed serious problems for Vermont and other parts of New England.

"There are just too many to list them. We're in real trouble," said Earl Osgood, operations director of Civil Defense for Vermont when he was asked about flooded roads and washed out bridges.

The impact of Belle, which made its first landfall on suburban Long Island early in the morning, was not so severe as had been expected in the metropolitan area. But it was bad enough to flood basements, snarl traffic and leave hundreds of thousands of people without electricity after fallen trees snapped power lines.

"God was with us," said Connecticut Gov. Ella Grasso this morning.

Forecasters said the worst of the storm, which had packed winds of up to 110 miles an hour during its three-day journey up the Atlantic Coast, would be over by noon.

But the danger of flooding from heavy rains remained and flash flood watches were posted in parts of Connecticut, Massachusetts and northern New England. Five to eight inches of rain were expected in Connecticut; up to six inches was predicted for Vermont.

Osgood said almost all the towns from the Massachusetts line to Shrewsbury, Vt., about 12 miles south of Rutland, were threatened by severe flooding. The National Weather Service advised that the storm would intensify, not abate as expected, before moving northward out of the area.

At 6 a.m. the center of the storm was near Springfield, Mass.

Deaths link possible in '74 outbreak

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — Health investigators are checking for a possible connection between the recent outbreak of "legionnaires disease" and an illness that killed three to 10 persons shortly after they attended a 1974 Odd Fellows Convention in Philadelphia.

Dr. Dennis Lucey, state commissioner for health planning, said the Odd Fellows outbreak involved symptoms of a nonspecific viral pneumonia.

Doctors have used a similar description for the unknown disease that has killed 27 and affected 128 others among the more than 10,000 who were at an American Legion convention July 21-24 in Philadelphia.

Dr. David Fraser, an investigator for the federal Center for Disease Control, said Monday that reports from the Odd Fellows indicated there were 17 cases and three deaths from the illness.

"There were probably 12 to 18 cases," said Samuel Patterson of Philadelphia, who was chairman of the committee that set up the 1974 convention of the men's fraternal organization. "We lost in the neighborhood of 10."

Fraser said the CDC had started phoning persons who took part in the 1974 convention to get further details.

Judge orders end to traffic experiment

Glitter goes out of Diamond Lane

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A U.S. District Court judge has ordered suspension of the Santa Monica Freeway's controversial "Diamond Lane" carpool experiment because the state failed to obtain an environmental impact report.

On Monday, Judge Matt Byrne ordered the suspension to begin with the morning rush hour this Friday, Aug. 13. Attorneys for the state Department of Transportation asked for a 20-day stay of the suspension pending an appeal.

Caltrans estimated it would take from nine months to a year to make the required studies.

In his ruling, Byrne noted that Caltrans attorneys never said the suspension would cause "irreparable harm" on the crammed Santa Monica Freeway.

Byrne ordered the suspension to stay in effect until state and federal transportation officials can show compliance with environmental laws. He added that all diamond-lane signs and stripings would have to be removed by Friday.

Since both federal and state agencies are involved in the project, Byrne said federal courts have jurisdiction in the case.

Byrne cited testimony from Donald Dove, Caltrans environmental planning supervisor, in criticizing the manner in which the state and federal governments exempted the project from environmental impact statements.

He said, "It was virtually impossible by the evidence of this case to determine what was done at Caltrans" in making the exemption."

Dove had told the judge during the nonjury trial that he accepted almost without question the conclusions about environmental impact requirements by the project's promoters. Federal transportation officials to whom Dove forwarded the conclusions also accepted them without question.

The lane was set up last March as a method of reducing traffic in compliance with federal clean-air standards. It has restricted use of the inside lane during weekday morning and evening rush hours to buses, and cars carrying three or more persons.

Man out of gas killed crossing S.B. Freeway

A Riverside man suffered fatal injuries Tuesday when he was struck by a station wagon as he attempted to cross on foot the San Bernardino Freeway east of Vineyard Avenue in Ontario.

The victim was taken to the Ontario Community Hospital by Ontario firemen, but died a short time later. Highway patrolmen did not identify the man, pending notification of his next of kin.

The man was carrying a can of gasoline and going toward his car parked on the Vineyard Avenue offramp when struck, said investigators.

Patsy Joyce Fehn, 32, Fontana, driver of the station wagon, told officers she was driving in a middle lane about 55 miles an hour when she observed the pedestrian run into the path of her vehicle.

She hit her brakes in an attempt to avoid the collision but the pedestrian was struck by the right front portion of her car.

The accident occurred about 2:50 p.m. and the victim was pronounced dead at 4:07 p.m., said investigators.

Judges may try to oust L.A.'s presiding jurist

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Municipal Court Judge Joseph R. Grillo's fellow judges may take an unprecedented step to remove him as presiding judge because of his recent contempt action against a county employe.

The Municipal Court judges, who say they are "shocked," "embarrassed" and "outraged" by the 64-year-old Grillo's actions, circulated a petition Monday that called for a mass meeting, possibly to discuss such action.

Grillo held county transportation manager James Czarnecki in contempt of court and sentenced him to two days in jail Friday when Czarnecki refused to issue Grillo with airplane tickets for a lobbying trip to the capital.

Grillo maintained he was acting for the court, using the contempt charge as a legal test to determine whether the court or the county board of supervisors has control of the court's budget.

Harrises guilty, but trial not over

LOS ANGELES (AP) — William and Emily Harris, avowed revolutionaries who shared Patricia Hearst's underground life, stand convicted of kidnaping and robbery in a trial which is not yet over.

In a verdict with grave implications for Miss Hearst, the Harrises were acquitted Monday of six counts of assault but were convicted of two kidnapings, one robbery and two car thefts — all involving Miss Hearst.

The jury apparently believed the Harrises' contention that Miss Hearst, a codefendant, willingly took part in the shooting that led to the assault charges.

The jury delivered its verdict unaware of a controversy about possible bias against the Harrises. Without dismissing the jury and ending the trial, the judge scheduled an unusual hearing today to investigate whether the verdict was tainted by prejudice.

In a surprise move, the jurors asked and were permitted to remain sequestered at a guarded hotel overnight to prevent contact with publicity they were ordered to avoid.

The sources of possible jury bias included reports of the construction of two mock hangman's nooses by potential jurors, the smuggling of an inflammatory newspaper article into a jury room and an allegedly biased remark by a juror who took part in the verdict.

The verdict by the seven-woman, five-man jury was angrily challenged by the defense.

Chief prosecutor Sam Mayerson said if prejudice were shown at the jury hearing he would join in a motion to set aside the verdict and seek a new trial.

"There were some unusual events in the trial, but I don't think they indicate the jury was tainted at all," he said.

Immediately after the verdict was announced, Dist. Atty. John Van de Kamp announced he would pursue the prosecution of Miss Hearst.

Although a codefendant with the Harrises, Miss Hearst's trial has been delayed until Jan. 10 while she undergoes psychiatric testing prior to sentencing on a federal bank robbery conviction in San Francisco.

Miss Hearst has admitted her role in the May 16, 1974, crime spree which led to charges against all three, but she said she was an unwilling captive of the Harrises and the Symbionese Liberation Army.

She has said she sprayed a Los Angeles sporting goods store with machine-gun fire to free William Harris after he was stopped for shoplifting. The prosecution said the trio then commandeered a van and car to escape, the basis for the other charges.

Although the Harrises face the possiblity of a maximum sentence of life on one count of robbery, the jury's reduction of other charges and the assault acquittals were seen as a partial victory for the defense.

The panel reduced the most serious charge — kidnaping for the purpose of robbery — to simple kidnaping, sparing the Harrises a mandatory life sentence.

The jury also reduced two charges of armed robbery to simple car theft but convicted the Harrises on five firearms violation charges.

In addition to the possible maximum life sentence on the robbery conviction, the couple could receive one to 25 years in prison on each of the two kidnaping convictions.

However, they still face an Alameda County criminal complaint of kidnaping Miss Hearst in February 1974, although no date for arraignment has been set.

It took 10 minutes to read the verdicts in the hushed courtroom where the Harrises had stood trial for more than seven weeks and had chosen not to present any defense witnesses.

Alta Lomans study cityhood without pain of tax boost

A plan to incorporate Alta Loma as a city and do so without a tax increase will be explained at a meeting of Citizens for the Incorporation of Alta Loma (CIAL) Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. in the Alta Loma Elementary School cafetorium

Speakers will be Earl Mackcam of the San Bernardino County Auditor-Controller's Office and Arthur Simonian, city manager of Yorba Linda.

CIAL Chairman Mary Barlow said a question and answer period will follow the presentations on small city tax structures.

Yorba Linda, with a population of about 23,500, has levied no city tax since it incorporated in November of 1967. The proposed Alta Loma city government is partially modeled after Yorba Linda's structure, Mrs. Barlow said.

The presentations to be made Wednesday confirm contents of the Alta Loma Alone feasibility study prepared months ago by a CIAL committee, she added.

Twenty-six members of CIAL are circulating petitions in a drive to keep Alta Loma out of a proposed city encompassing Cucamonga, Etiwanda and Alta Loma.

The Tri-Communities Incorporation Study Committee has filed a resolution with the Local Agency Formation Commission (LAFCO) requesting cityhood for the entire area under the name of Rancho Cucamonga.

CIAL members have filed a separate resolution with LAFCO requesting that Alta Loma be granted cityhood.

CIAL's goal in the petition drive is to collect 2,000 signatures to demonstrate Alta Loma residents' opposition to the tri-community plan.

The petitions are to be presented to LAFCO at its next public hearing in the fall.

LAFCO will decide which incorporation resolution will go to the voters in June of 1977.

Mrs. Barlow said that petition signers need not be registered voters since the only objective now is to influence LAFCO. Exclusion from the tri-community plan, she said, would give Alta Loma the choice of incorporation by itself, continuing as an unincorporated county area, or annexing later "to Cucamonga and Etiwanda should they incorporate together."

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Durham are chairmen of CIAL's petition drive.

Assistant city exec post is filled in S.D.

Norman Livran, executive director of the Ventura County Taxpayers Association, has been appointed assistant city manager and finance director for the City of San Dimas.

Livran succeeds Barbara Henderson, who resigned to take a position as finance director with the City of Irvine. He will take over his responsibilities in San Dimas on Aug. 30.

Livran comes to San Dimas with experience at the city, county and state levels of government as well as private industry. He lived in San Dimas while a deputy sheriff for Los Angeles County.

While with the Sheriff's Department for five years, he completed his bachelor degree in public administration at USC, and is currently working on a master's degree from the university.

He served as administrative assistant to the city manager of La Mirada for two years and was administrator for the Los Angeles County Local Agency Formation Commission for five years. He was then appointed executive secretary to the California State Intergovernmental Board on Electronic Data Processing.

He also served as director of operations for Wilsey and Ham, a planning and engineering consulting firm.

Gov. Brown acts against underfinanced health plans

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. says the operation of a Hawthorne prepaid health plan "raises suspicions in my mind" because of its complicated web of interrelated corporations.

On Monday, Brown told state Corporations Commissioner Willie Barnes to order all prepaid health plans which fail state standards of adequate financial assets to comply with rules or suspend operations.

He also ordered Barnes to review allegations made in a legislative subcommittee that Omni-Rx Health Care, Inc., had used political influence to get special treatment from his administration.

Omni-Rx provides health care for 12,000 persons under a $3.7 million a year state Medi-Cal contract.

Omni-Rx officers include William A. Burke, husband of Congresswoman Yvonne Burke of Los Angeles. Mrs. Burke delivered one of two presidential seconding speeches for Brown at the Democratic National Convention last month.

Brown was critical of Omni-Rx in his news conference, and he said he did not consider it a political problem to probe Omni-Rx because of the connection with Burke.

"I'm not able to form a final conclusion. But I would say that just looking at the Omni-Rx corporate structure, it certainly raises suspicions in my mind," Brown said.

"It is a very complex corporate structure with money moving from one entity to another. And for that reason I have asked the commissioner to take a very hard look at just what is going on in that particular company and related companies.

"For my own part, I find it such a pretzel palace of interlocking entities that it just raises the question of why all that complexity is necessary if nothing wrong is going on," Brown said.

Brown said the inquiry into the health care plans does not involve the question of the quality of medical care, but only financial questions.

About 28 prepaid health plans provide medical services to state Medi Cal patients. They operate in clinic or group practice arrangements at a fixed rate per patient patterned after private group health insurance programs.

Harrises' attorney stunned by verdict, calls it 'tainted'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The robbery and kidnaping convictions of Patricia Hearst's onetime companions, William and Emily Harris, was described as "tainted" and "extraordinary" in its prejudice by the couple's chief defense counsel.

"It's the most tainted of any trial we've been able to find in case law," said chief defense counsel Leonard Weinglass after Monday's verdicts were handed down. "We and the Harrises feel pretty badly."

Throughout the trial, Weinglass and the Harrises repeatedly accused Superior Court Judge Mark Brandler of misconduct and maintained that several alleged incidents involving jurors and potential jurors had prejudiced the panel against the Harrises.

Weinglass said it was "extraordinary that a court could accept this verdict. It is sad, to say the least."

Weinglass and co-counsel Mark Rosenbaum said several incidents had prejudiced the jury, including the alleged statement by one of the jurors that the case "was a forgone conclusion" before it ever started. Another allegation was directed at a former potential juror, who was said to have fashioned a hangman's noose from a piece of cord. In a similar incident, another man was seen constructing a miniature gallows from paper clips, from which he hung two paper dolls.

"I don't think this verdict would stand up in any court," Weinglass said.

"The Harrises," he added, "have a sense of resignation" about the verdict and "don't expect any relief at the hands of Judge Brandler."

But Weinglass said the Harrises achieved a victory of sorts in that they were found innocent of charges involving the shooting at Mel's Sporting Goods store. The grand jury indictment said they acted as accomplices of fugitive newspaper heiress Patricia Hearst, who admitted firing a weapon as a reflex action to aid the Harrises in their escape.

Weiglass pointed out that the Harrises were convicted on only two of the charges as they were stated in the 11-count indictment, and said, "You can analyze that and say we won more than half the case."

Los Angeles County Dist. Atty. John Van de Kamp and prosecuting attorney Sam Mayerson met with reporters later and said they were satisfied with the verdict.

"We're concerned the defendants receive a fair trial," said Van de Kamp, "And we think they did."

Mayerson admitted there were some "unusual events" during the trial but said, "I don't think they indicate the jury was tainted at all.

Weinglass...after the decision

"They had some very technical legal decisions to decide. The jury did it's job, we did our job. They concluded the legal issues, I accept them.

"We made it clear all along that we didn't want a tainted jury any more than anyone else. If the inquiry of the jurors reveals taint, we would concur in the granting of a new trial."

Mrs. Joann Johnson of Carmel, Ind., sister to William Harris, said of the conviction: "I feel bad about it . . . I went to the trial for a week and it was a circus, terribly unfair."

The jurors were sequestered Monday night, and were to return to court today to face questioning over the alleged prejudicial incidents.

Coastline control bill passes its first hurdle in Assembly

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The major bill in the California Legislature to hold down development of the coastline and make it more accessible to the public has won its first Assembly test.

A 10-3 vote Monday of the Assembly Resources, Land Use and Energy Committee sent it to the Ways and Means Committee.

By state Sen. Jerry Smith, D-Saratoga, the bill is aimed at specific areas with high recreational potential.

Originally carried by Sen Anthony Bielenson, D-Los Angeles, the bill was first blocked by a Senate committee, then vastly amended to carry the viewpoint of Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. It has passed the Senate, but would face that body again for action on the amendments.

Monday's vote came after conservationists and other proponents praised it as a reasonable compromise between conflicting interests.

The proponents at the hearing included the Associated General Contractors, Planning and Conservation League and Sierra Club.

San Diego Mayor Pete Wilson, representing the League of California Cities, lined up with the proponents. But he said he didn't favor the bill without additional amending to better protect the autonomy of local government, to reimburse local government for costs of compliance, and to clarify the grounds for appeal.

Other opponents said the bill doesn't compensate property owners for economic losses, implies single-use management, doesn't permit enough roads and parking, and would give common folks access to the overcrowded beaches while preserving the best for the rich.

The opponents included the developers of Sea Ranch on the north coast, the California Chamber of Commerce, Automobile Club of Southern California, Forest Protective Association, California Association of Realtors, Pacific Gas & Electric Co., and the California Builders Council.

Recreation Review in Montclair

The Montclair Recreation Department's 19th annual Recreation Review will be held at 7 p.m. Wednesday and Thursday in the Recreation Building patio.

The review is the culmination of the summer's activities, and will include musical numbers and demonstrations by participants in the various classes. Playground awards will be presented to the children earning the highest total points for their individual playground activities.

The championship trophy will be presented at the Thursday program to the playground whose participants compiled the highest total points for the all-city tournaments.

Work done by students in the arts and crafts, macrame, ceramics, cake decorating and shop classes will be exhibited in the Recreation Room. All exhibited work will be judged and ribbons will be presented.

Walnut to mull new residential standards

Standards of residential development will be discussed by the Walnut City Council Wednesday night with an eye toward an ordinance governing landscaping, equestrian trails and public improvements.

Topics expected to come up during the discussion are planting and irrigation when a hill is cut for residential development to prevent soil from washing away, width, fencing and basic materials to apply to equestrian trails within a residential development and street width and materials throughout the city.

Other agenda items include requests for final tract map approval for two developments with a total of 50 units. Of these, 44 are to be built by Larwin Corp. in the area of Carrey Road and Lemon Avenue. The other six are to be constructed by Steve-Scott Co. east of Lemon and south of Vejar Road.

The council plans to adjourn to Monday, Aug. 23, to discuss slope density and land use elements of the general plan.

In this connection, Councilman Richard Laughter is suggesting a six-or eight-month tract map moratorium until updating of the two elements is completed.

Laughter favors a reduction in the 28,000 population density which has been projected for 1980. He believes current residents favor a low-density-bedroom community rather than a high density-commercial city.

Public versus private pensions: widening gap

By LEE MITGANG
Associated Press Writer

An employe of the nation's largest city, New York, can retire at age 62 after 33 years' service and collect retirement pay equal to what he was making in his final year of employment.

A worker at the nation's largest corporation, American Telephone & Telegraph, retiring with similar senioriy will get only half the benefits the New York City worker will.

The example illustrates a general picture in which the average city or state worker gets double the retirement benefits of the average private employe, according to "Public Employe Pension Funds," a recent study by pension expert Robert Tilove.

Is this a ripoff by city and state workers at the expense of taxpayers or a gravy train that the private worker missed? Just what is a "fair pension?"

Tilove says that, in general, a pension equal to 80 per cent of final take-home pay would be fair. Another expert, Professor Bernard Jump of Syracuse University, says 90 per cent. Both agree that the ultimate aim of retirement income should be maintenance of the worker's standard of living after he retires.

By that measure, private pension plans which together with Social Security provide the average retiree with about two-thirds of his final year's pay are inadequate. Public plans in several large cities that grant pensions of over 100 per cent of final take-home pay might be considered overgenerous.

New York City union leader Victor Gotbaum said in a recent interview that the facts only show that workers in private industry are getting a raw deal, not that city workers are ripping anyone off.

Others say that the sharp increases in city and state benefits, added to a 93.6 per cent rise in Social Security benefits in the last six years, created a postretirement bonanza for public workers that government at all levels will be hard pressed to pay for in future years.

Jump says that if a city or state provides Social Security coverage in addition to the basic pension and "if a person works for 30 years and retires at age 62, he's almost certain to get higher postretirement income than his after-tax final pay."

"Personally I think that's too high," he says.

Only about half of privately employed workers have pension coverage at all. Nearly all public workers have some form of coverage.

About a third of public employes, however, are not covered by Social Security. Practically all privately-employed workers get Social Security benefits. Such benefits normally boost retirement income by 30 to 33 per cent.

"Prior to 1951, public employes were not covered by Social Security. Thus, public pension plans were generally designed to provide adequate retirement income by themselves," wrote Raymond Schmitt in a recent Congressional Research Service paper on public pensions.

That's what president's strategists say

Reagan could be Ford's running mate

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — President Ford's campaign strategists, trying to counter a move to require advance announcement of his vice presidential choice, are holding out the longshot possibility that Ronald Reagan might wind up as his running mate.

That couldn't happen if the choice had to be disclosed before the presidential nomination is settled — so the Ford men say some Reagan delegates may wind up voting against the rule proposed by the challenger's campaign manager.

They're ready to fight all week — and they may have to — against the vice presidential rule proposed by John P. Sears, who wants the Republicans to require that candidates name their running mate at least a half-day in advance of the roll call on the White House nomination.

With that maneuver, and with pressure in the platform committee, the Reagan camp is testing Ford's clout in convention preliminaries, hoping to gain strength for the main event.

The process continued today, as a Republican rules committee considered a requirement that delegates be compelled to vote in accordance with the verdicts of binding primary elections in 20 states.

Otherwise, delegates now bound to one candidate by primary election could be freed to switch to the other, with Reagan the likely beneficiary. Ford supports the rule binding the delegate votes, Reagan opposes it.

The surprise vice presidential proposal Sears advanced on Monday would make the rule moot anyhow by declaring that no delegate could be bound to support a presidential candidate who failed to name his vice presidential choice by 9 a.m. on the day of presidential nomination, Aug. 18 in this case.

Reagan already has named his, Sen. Richard S. Schweiker of Pennsylvania. Ford has said he will stick to the traditional route and will disclose his choice after the presidential nomination.

"It's an attempt by Sears to write a rule that would force us to make the same mistake Reagan did," said Peter Kaye, spokesman for the Ford campaign.

Two of the six members of Ford's board of convention strategy cited the possibility of a Reagan vice presidential nomination in forecasting defeat of the Sears proposal.

Reagan has said he would not accept the vice presidential nomination, and a top aide said he means it. Ford at one point said he accepted Reagan at his word. He now has asked for financial and health information from more than a dozen Republicans he is considering as possible vice presidential choices.

Richard Hermann of Lincoln, Neb., who is handling convention rules strategy for the Ford campaign, said that doesn't mean that Reagan is out as a potential running mate. Hermann said some Reagan delegates want their man in second place if he can't win the top spot, and therefore will vote against the Sears proposal.

Dean Burch, a former White House aide and another member of the Ford strategy panel, added that despite the customary denials "it is not unusual that candidates for president wind up on the same ticket."

The Sears maneuver was rejected by the rules panel of the Republican National Committee, but that was expected. White House loyalists dominate that committee. Sears said he would push the proposal again in the separate convention rules committee, where Reagan has more support although Ford delegates apparently are the majority.

And if necessary, Sears said, he will take the issue to the convention floor. That could produce a fight foretelling the presidential nominating vote.

Burch said a convention floor vote might be close, but he said Ford would win it. "I think this has simply got to be considered as a ploy, a gambit," he said.

"I think it shows the governor doesn't have the strength that he's contending he has," Hermann said. "He is seeking every means ... he can to develop a contest within the ranks of our delegates."

Sears denied that his vice presidential proposal was designed to embarrass Ford or to gain votes for Reagan. He said the delegates have a right to know who they are voting for, for vice president as well as president.

Platform drafters finding out what are sticky issues

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Republican platform drafters appear to find agreement easier on defense matters than on abortion and women's rights as they tackle some of the more controversial issues before them.

This was the preliminary indication as platform committee panels began digesting testimony taken earlier and talked about wording planks to offer the national convention a week from today.

Meanwhile, the full committee turned to testimony on jobs and the economy, especially to denunciations of Democratic proposals.

Treasury Secretary William Simon and several economists, some of them asked to appear before the platform committees by Ronald Reagan supporters, consider the Democratic proposals ruinously expensive.

James Lynn, director of the Office of Management and Budget, said Monday that major Democratic proposals on full employment and social services could require a 50 per cent increase in income taxes to finance.

Discussions by a subcommittee on defense and foreign affairs appeared to show a majority in favor of taking a position on the future of the Panama Canal, an item that had been omitted from an earlier working paper circulated among some delegates.

Reagan has made strong statments about retaining sovereignty over the canal. President Ford's administration insists there is no intention of sacrificing U.S. interests in the waterway, but officials have been speaking in more moderate terms than Reagan while conducting sensitive negotiations with Panama.

F.W. Streetman of Florida, a subcommittee member, remarked, "I am sure we are going to have a plank on strong defense and the Panama Canal — the problem is words."

In contrast, members of a panel on Human Rights and Responsibilities offered sharply differing proposals for a platform statement on abortion.

Delegate Joseph Usery of Oregon, a Baptist minister, called for support of a constitutional amendment defining human life as present from conception. V. Thomas Rice of Hawaii, however, said the platform, if it spoke on the subject, should support the Supreme Court decision sharply limiting authority of states to legislate against abortion. Richard Israel of Rhode Island suggested emphasizing responsibility for research and encouragement of alternatives to abortion.

Disagreement is expected also on the issue of women's rights, particularly over the Equal Rights Amendment.

Nation's postal force threatens to stage protest

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — American postal workers have resolved to stage massive protests at the nation's post offices if the government doesn't address itself to some of the worker grievances.

At an APW convention here Monday, members overwhelmingly voted to give the postal system administration until Sept. 20 to "change its disasterous courses of action."

If no change is made, the resolution said off-duty employes will gather on a specific day — still undecided—and picket in front of the nation's 4,000 post offices.

If the demonstration in front of post offices fails to bring changes, the resolution says a massive demonstration in front of the White House is planned.

Beyond that, court action — injunctive relief—and a plea for support from other unions were spelled out.

Carter wants to outshine Ralph Nader

PLAINS, Ga. (AP) — Jimmy Carter says that if he is elected president he will do his best to outshine Ralph Nader as "the top consumer advocate in the nation."

Carter allied himself formally on Monday with many of Nader's consumer causes.

He endorsed a law making it a crime for an industry to hire a federal official charged with regulating it. He said that if elected president he would give atomic power the lowest priority among energy sources. And he called the Ford administration's approach to corporate bribery overseas "permissive criminality."

Carter, who returned to his hometown after a one-day trip to Washington, prepared to vote today in Georgia's state and congressional primary election.

At Nader's Public Citizens Forum, the Democratic presidential nominee compared the cause of consumers with his own brand of populism and he said of Nader, "I hope to challenge him in the future for the title of top consumer advocate in the country."

In meetings with House and Senate committee chairmen and congressional candidates, Carter asked for advance notice of major policy and legislative initiative.

"I don't have any right to act as if I already was president," Carter told one House group. "I'll try to be very careful about that."

Nader and his followers have leveled intense criticism at the conduct of the federal regulatory agencies and Carter agreed that previous presidents, by their appointments, have created what he called a revolving door between the government and industry.

"I'd like to see Congress pass a law which would make it illegal for the movement of members of the regulatory agencies back into the industry from which they have come . . ." Carter said.

If it were impossible to pass such a law, he said, he would try to prevent the present situation from continuing through executive order and commitments from those he appoints.

Spotlight on area crime

Walnut man hit in face with bullet

A 19-year-old Walnut man, sleeping on a couch in a living room, was hit in the face by one of three .22 caliber bullets fired into his home at 19627 Camino del Rosa about 1:15 a.m. today.

Peter Mendoza was treated at San Dimas Community Hospital for injuries to the nose and cheek and released.

Neither Peter nor his father, Alfred Mendoza, 47, knew who the gunman might be, they told sheriff's deputies today.

The bullets apparently were fired from a passing car.

Uplander stabbed

A 31-year-old Upland man beaten and stabbed by three men as he walked out of an Ontario liquor store Monday was listed in poor condition this morning at San Antonio Community Hospital in Upland.

Randolph Ed Brown of 1242 W. 11th St., Upland, was admitted to the Upland hospital's intensive care unit shortly after the incident was reported.

Brown was able to tell officers that he had just walked out of a liquor store in the area of State Street in Ontario when three men stopped him. He said one of the men accused him of "ripping him off" and began to stab him numerous times. Brown said that his assailant was accompanied by two other men.

Police said Brown described his assailant as a Latin, with long hair wearing brown pants and a white T-shirt. He had a slight mustache and goatee.

Police said Brown suffered multiple stab wounds of the chest and arms.

Robbery attempt foiled

Two men who attempted to rob the Club 60 at Mission Boulevard and Central Avenue in MONTCLAIR Saturday night were booked in West End Jail this morning after bar patrons managed to disarm one of them and hold him until sheriff's deputies arrived.

Nathan Sandoval Medina, 26, of the Trella Motel on Mission Boulevard, disarmed by bar patrons at the scene of the attempted robbery, was booked in the West End Jail on one count of robbery, deputies said. Larry Emerson Hodson, 30, a transient, was also arrested and booked on the same charge later.

Deputies said the two men had been drinking in the bar when they apparently ran out of money. One of the suspects pulled a gun out of his shirt and demanded money from the bartender. Patrons in the bar witnessing the incident suddenly jumped on the gunman and wrestled him to the ground. The second man fled.

Girl stabbed

A 17-year-old POMONA girl was recovering at home today after being stabbed with a kitchen knife by a "one-time friend," police said.

Officers indicated Paulette Navarro was stabbed in the buttocks and rib cage areas by a female juvenile in an alley in the 1900 block of S. Park Avenue late Saturday night.

The victim had become involved in an altercation with the suspect, which led to the stabbing. The suspect was held by police briefly and released.

Miss Navarro was treated at Pomona Valley Community Hospital and released.

Transient arrested

A 21-year-old transient was arrested Monday in connection with an unsuccessful holdup of Winchell's Donut House, 600 E. Holt Blvd., POMONA, late Saturday night.

George Stanley Hollins was sitting on a bench at Cherrieville Park when Pomona officers arrested him.

Walter Grant, night manager at Winchell's, told officers Saturday night that about 10:17 p.m. a man armed with a blue-steel automatic, with the barrel covered by a handkerchief, walked up to a service window, and began pounding on it.

Grant said he pointed to a sign which said, "Closed."

Grant said that the man demanded all the money Grant had.

The night manager said he told the bandit, "Sorry, Charlie, you're too late. The manager just left with all our money."

Grant said that when the man demanded all the money in the cash register and Grant started for the cash register, the bandit became startled and fled on foot.

Market clerk shot

A 23-year-old POMONA market clerk was shot in the shoulder by a robber during a holdup early Monday, police said.

Richard Ennis was shot by one of three men who entered the Seven-11 store at Dudley Street and Murchison Avenue at 2:47 a.m. and demanded money.

The men displayed a chrome revolver and forced Ennis to open the cash register. They also ordered James French, 21, a friend of Ennis, to lie face down at the rear of the market.

After taking money and a .38 caliber revolver from the market, one robber yelled to another, "Shoot that guy." Ennis was shot in the upper right shoulder. He was later treated and released at Pomona Valley Community Hospital.

Arrested in plaza

A 28-year-old Ontario woman faces charges of assault with a deadly weapon and disturbing the peace for allegedly attacking May Co. security officers attempting to arrest her for shoplifting Sunday in the MONTCLAIR Plaza.

Freddie Mae Fort of 934 Orange St., Ontario, was arrested in the May Co. store after security officers saw her shoplifting, police said. When security officers informed her she was under arrest the woman suddenly broke away and ran down the aisles.

Security officers told police that she began throwing mannequins and other objects. Three security guards finally surrounded her and wrestled her to the ground.

Ontario hotel robbed

A clerk at the Beverly Hotel, 116 S. Euclid Ave. in ONTARIO was struck over the head with a handgun and the hotel cash register rifled early this morning, police reported.

Hotel clerk Kenneth Wriggs called police about 2:23 a.m. to report the robbery. Wriggs told police that a heavy set man with neck length blond hair came up to the desk to ask for a room. He said as he turned his back he was struck over the head and knocked to the floor. The robber took a small amount of cash from the register and fled.

The robber was further described as a white, 5 feet 9, wearing an Army jacket and blue jeans.

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Jacob B. Gunn, the warden of Folsom Prison, is retiring and will be replaced by Paul J. Morris, superintendent of the Conservation Center at Susanville.

The state Director of Corrections, Jerry Enomoto, announced Tuesday that Morris would be replaced by Senon E. Palacioz, 47, department assistant director for human relations.

Gunn, 50, began his career at the Vocational Institution at Lancaster in 1950. He has been the warden at Folsom since 1973.

Morris, 47, joined the department in 1951 at San Quentin.

Marines start tough traffic safety project

CAMP PENDLETON (AP)— Camp Pendleton officials say traffic controls and penalties are being stepped up because of an upsurge in traffic accidents at the Marine Corps base and on nearby streets and highways.

A spokesman said 20 Marines have been killed and 251 injured between Jan. 1 and Aug. 3.

The result of the situation includes the naming of 60 field grade and noncommissioned senior officers to act as traffic monitors and report violations they observe, the spokesman said Monday.

Flour to direct United Way drive

J. ROBERT FLUOR

J. Robert Fluor has been appointed chairman of the 1976-77 United Way campaign in Los Angeles County, a partnership fund drive between the Red Cross and United Way.

Fluor is chairman and chief executive officer of Fluor Corp., an international firm specializing in services to the natural resources industries.

Proceeds from the campaign will go toward funding 250 human care agencies and 12 Red Cross chapters in the area. These facilities provide direct service to one out of every three residents of the county each year.

Fluor served as 1974 campaign chairman for Region V (Central Los Angeles) and as immediate past chairman of the United Way corporate public information committee.

Tension talk for C of C in Montclair

Clyde Curran, a professor at the Claremont Graduate School, will be guest speaker at the Aug. 18 luncheon of the Montclair Chamber of Commerce.

Curran will speak on "Rejuvenation for Business People: A Program To Reduce Damaging Stress Through the Use of Bio-Feedback Techniques."

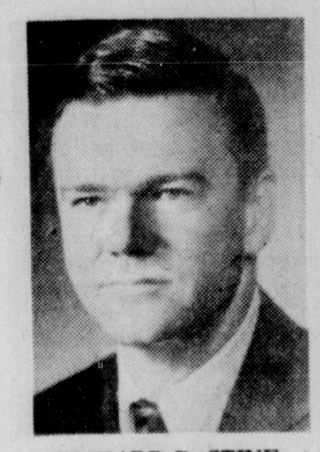
The cost of the luncheon is $3.50 and reservations may be made through the chamber office, 624-1280.

The luncheon will be held at the Islander Terrace. No-host cocktails will be served at 11:30 and the luncheon will be at noon.

Farm group

The American Farm Bureau Federation was founded in 1919 and is the largest organization of farmers in the United States.

CHARLES E. GROSS



RICHARD D. STINE

University Center execs named

Two new vice presidents have been named to the administration of Claremont University Center, the central coordinating institution of the Claremont Colleges.

Richard D. Stine of Berkeley has been appointed vice president for development and Charles E. Gross of Claremont will serve as vice president for business and finance. They are two of the four principal officers working with President Joseph B. Platt who took office July 1 as part of a university center reorganization.

Paul A. Albrecht, dean of the Claremont Graduate School, and E.Howard Brooks, provost, will continue in the positions they have held for several years.

Stine has been director of undergraduate programs for the Wright Institute in Berkeley. Concurrently he was executive associate at The Exploration in San Francisco, a "hands-on" museum.

Stine was president of Monmouth College, Illinois, from 1970 to 1974. He has an A.B. and Ph.D. in American civilization from the University of Pennsylvania where he served as development officer for 12 years. He and his wife, Elizabeth, have five grown children.

Gross, a Claremont resident since 1964, was senior vice president of Challenge Cook Brothers in the City of Industry before accepting the new post.

He was an associate professor for three years, teaching systems and procedures courses in night school in San Diego State College and Cal-Western University.

Gross has a B.A. in business administration from Parsons College, Fairfield, Iowa, and an M.A. in accounting from State University of Iowa. He and his wife, Ruth, have two grown children and are active in the Claremont Presbyterian Church.

The university center reorganization recombines the graduate school with the university center. CGS had operated for five years under its own president, although it always has been a part of the university center corporate structure.

Ex-valley woman in on telethon effort

A former Ontario woman, Margie Mastin, is sponsoring a "Goat-a-Rama" as the benefit for the Jerry Lewis Muscular Dystrophy Association telethon on Labor Day.

"Cindy," a purebred Nubian doe kid, will be offered through Kalamar's ranch in Avoca, Ark., as an award on the benefit telethon.

The young goat will be given away on the MDA telethon on Sept. 6 and will be shipped via air freight to the winner.

The telethon, a 21½ hour benefit marathon, will be broadcast from Las Vegas and carried coast-to-coast by some 200 stations.

Mayor Thomas Bradley will serve as the Los Angeles chairman.

The show will be aired locally over KTTV, Channel 11, beginning Sept. 5 at 6 p.m. and continue until 3:30 p.m. Sept. 6.

The university center, besides conducting graduate education, operates the services that are central to all the colleges.

Straight Talk from UCB/Number 8

Is it safe to write a check on Wednesday when you don't get paid until Friday?

No. Checks can clear very fast.

In as little as one day. Checks you send out of town can take a little longer. It all depends on how long the person you wrote the check to waits before cashing it.

One reassuring word about timing: At UCB, and at most other banks, your balance is figured on a daily basis. At the end of each business day, we credit deposits first. Then we deduct any checks that came in. That helps.

Remember that besides costing you a handling charge, (most banks charge $4), a returned check can also affect your credit rating.

Yes. You can avoid the problem altogether.

Almost all banks offer overdraft protection to people who ask for it, and who qualify. At UCB, it's called Balance Plus.® And what it does is simple. If you write a check for more than you have in your account, we'll put the money there for you (up to your limit). Of course, we don't give you the money. We lend it to you. And charge interest.

Now, are you sure you know the basics of checking?

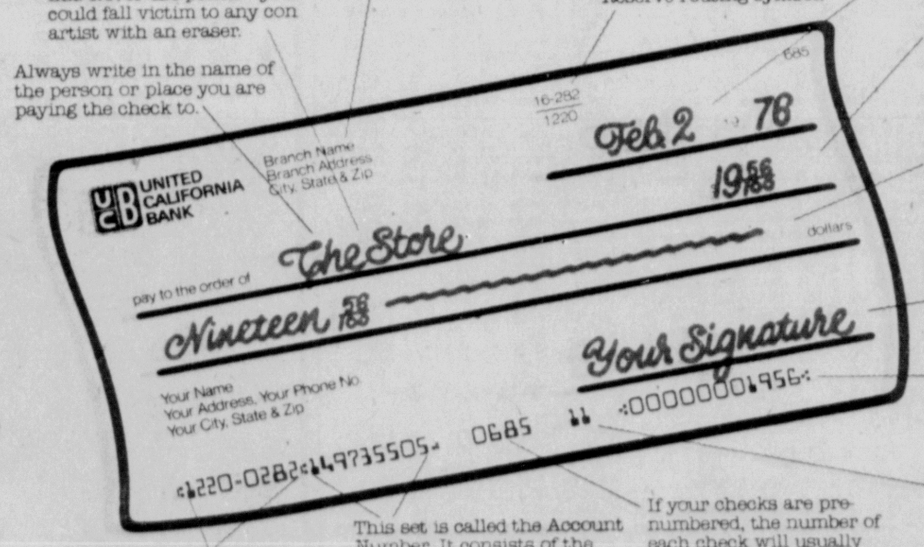
A lot of people do. A lot of people think they do, but don't. So here follows some pretty fundamental information about checks and checking accounts.

The 10 Commandments of checking.

1. Guard your checks. If you lose even one, notify your bank immediately.
2. Carry your driver's license, credit cards, and I.D. separately from your checkbook! Together, they're the answer to a forger's prayers.
3. Never sign a blank check. If you lose it, it could be money in the bank for whomever finds it.
4. The same goes for checks made out to "Cash." Write and sign them after you get to the bank.
5. Never change anything on a check. And never accept an altered check. If a bank is uncertain about the information on a check, they'll probably return it.

How to write a check and how to read one:

(If you bank at UCB, your checks will look like the one shown here. Checks from other banks may be a little different.)



6. Don't lend your checks or deposit slips and don't borrow anyone else's. The magnetic code number at the bottom is still there, even if you cross it out.
7. Never use a check or deposit slip that is torn in the magnetic code area.
8. Each time you receive a new set of checks, make sure the account number printed at the bottom is your account number – not someone else's.
9. When you receive a check, cash it as soon as possible. Many banks won't honor a check if it's more than 90 days old.
10. When endorsing a check, sign your name exactly as it appears on the front, even if it's misspelled. Then sign your regular signature beneath it.

Choose the Checking Account that's right for you.

Here's what's available at UCB:

The United Account®: We think it's our best plan. You pay a flat $3 a month ($2 a month if you qualify for credit) for a whole package of services, including a regular checking account. By the way, if you're over 62, your United Account is free.

Regular checking: If you're an average or heavy check writer, this plan is right for you. You pay 60¢ a month plus 10¢ per check. Or, you can pay nothing. Here's how:

A. Keep a $300 minimum balance in your account for the month, or
B. Maintain an average daily balance of $600 during the month.

Special checking: If you write very few checks a month this plan could save you money. You pay 15¢ a check. Period.

If you have any questions about which checking plan is best for your needs, just ask your Customer Service Representative at any UCB branch.

A little suggestion from UCB.

A lot of young people start their financial lives ill-informed. Nobody's ever told them the fundamentals of banking. We'd like to do that. So if there's someone in your family who's ready for a checking account, bring them in. We'll tell them all we know about the subject. And that's another example of what we mean by getting it straight from UCB.

Johnny Wonder's QUESTION CORNER

Q. "WHAT IS TAXIDERMY?"

JOHN McCLARY
SPRING LAKE PARK, MN

A. TAXIDERMY IS THE ART OF PREPARING LIFELIKE REPRESENTATIONS OF ANIMALS, USUALLY BY MOUNTING THE SKIN OVER A LIFE-SIZE MODEL OF THE ANIMAL

DICK ROGERS

If you have visited a natural history museum, you may have seen lifelike figures of lions, antelope and other wild animals.

We think of them as "stuffed animals," and this is just what taxidermy involves. It is the art of preserving animals and showing them as they looked when alive.

Taxidermists have done away with the idea of merely stuffing animal skins.

To preserve a lion, for example, the taxidermist carefully measures the dead animal. Then he removes the skin and treats it with special chemicals to preserve it.

Next, he makes a model the size and shape of the animal out of a wire framework covered with clay or plaster. From this, a light "mannikin" of burlap and glue is made.

The skin is then fitted over the burlap figure and the eyes and other features are added.

The mounting of birds, fish and other small animals is done differently, but the basic idea is the same.

A World Almanac globe or other fine prize will be awarded to the first youngster sending in a question used here. Send your question and your age to Johnny Wonder, (c/o this newspaper), Box 1335 (DA), Santa Cruz, CA 95061.

Public vs. private pensions . . .

ment over private because of generous retirement benefits that made up for generally lower salaries, the paper says.

This "may explain, in part, the generally higher benefit formulas offered under some public employe retirement plans," Schmitt says.

The bottom line shows city or state employes often making more after they stop work than before, a rarity in the private field.

A study conducted in New York City this year by Mayor Abraham D. Beame's Management Advisory Board found that a city worker making $11,300 after 38 years' service and retiring at age 63 could count on retirement pay, including Social Security, equal to 106 per cent of his final take-home salary.

By contrast, the study found, workers at seven top corporations with similar salary and seniority get retirement benefits from 13 to 43 per cent below the New York City worker.

At Exxon, retirement pay, including Social Security, totals 82.9 per cent of final take-home salary; at General Motors, 93 per cent; at Union Carbide, 70.2 per cent; at AT&T, 67.1 per cent; at Con Edison, 73 per cent; at Citibank, 84.8 per cent; and at Metropolitan Life, 64.6 per cent.

Another comparison drawn by Jump showed nonuniformed city workers who had been making $15,000 with 30 years' service at age 65 were getting 127 per cent of final after-tax pay in New York City, 116 per cent in Detroit and 129 per cent in Philadelphia, including Social Security benefits.

This beats even the best retirement deals offered in private industry, Jump says. At Eastman Kodak, a worker with similar salary and seniority would get 100 per cent of final after-tax pay in retirement benefits, Social Security included. Workers at New York Telephone likewise get 100 per cent.

At International Business Machines Corp., retirement benefits total 94 per cent of final pay, and at Bankers Trust of New York, the total is 99 per cent.

Some city plans fall well below those levels. In Atlanta, a $15,000 nonuniformed worker with similar age and seniority gets 54 per cent of final take-home pay in retirement benefits, in Chicago 62 per cent, in Dallas 64 per cent, in Los Angeles 68 per cent and in Washington 64 per cent.

Two trends in recent years, however, have pushed benefit levels for some city and state workers far ahead of what most private workers could hope to get.

One is the trend toward early retirement, particularly for big city police and firemen, but also for other workers.

A New York City transit worker making $17,079, for example, can retire at age 50 after 24 years' service and promptly collect a full pension of $9,910 a year.

If a worker at a similar age, seniority and salary level decided to retire from AT&T, Con Edison, General Motors or most other large corporations, he'd have to wait 15 years before drawing his pension.

New York City is thus paying the 50-year-old transit worker 86.4 per cent more in total retirement benefits than a comparable private employe.

Another factor increasing city and state benefits in the past decade has been the introduction of cost-of-living adjustments into pension benefits. Over-all, inflation adjustments by city and state plans appear more generous than private plans, but less generous than most federal pension plans.

One study conducted by the Tax Foundation found that four-fifths of all state-run pension plans now have some sort of postretirement adjustments in force. In total, more than half of all public employes at the city or state level get some form of postretirement inflation allowances.

"Most corporations don't legally bind themselves to cost-of-living percentages, but many take pretty darn good care of their retirees," Jump said in an interview.

With inflation running high, the cost-of-living adjustment can put added burdens on cities and states. But the absence of cost-of-living provisions can work severe hardships on retirees.

Jump calculates that in the next decade a retired Atlanta policeman or fireman getting no inflation adjustment will see the value of his benefits fall about 30 per cent, with similar erosion in New York, Philadelphia and other places that provide no inflation protection to retirees.

New police chief hears hurrahs...and gripes

By ED PRATHER
PB Staff Writer

Pomona City Council officially welcomed James W. Richards as the city's new police chief Monday night, and at the same time honored Capt. Richard Slaght for his service in that post for the past five months.

"Good luck to you. You have our support," said Mayor Ray Lepire following the presentation of the chief's badge by Councilwoman Georgia Grove.

Richards assumed the post Monday morning.

Slaght, who had been the acting police chief since the retirement of F.P. Wallick last March, was presented with a plaque in recognition of his service.

"We owe a lot of thanks to Dick Slaght for a tough job well done," said Councilman Charles Bader.

Ironically, the Pomona Police Department came in for some heavy criticism later in the meeting when residents complained they receive little or no cooperation from police officers.

Seven persons addressed the council with most of the complaints having to do with the length of time officers take in responding to a call and the attitude of officers toward "victims" of crimes.

Freda Fernandez said that her small grocery store has been burglarized four times and held up once in the last four years.

"When we had the armed robbery I called the police as they (the robbers) were taking my husband out the front door with them," she said.

"It took them (police) 45 minutes to show up and the store is only a block from the station."

Clovis Bordeaux of the Concerned Citizens of Valwood II said the police had been uncooperative with himself and other members of the Valwood residents' association recently when they attempted to bail out a young resident of the area, who had been arrested for carrying a gun.

Other speakers complained that police won't arrest burglary suspects even when residents point out the alleged culprits.

"Police protection in Pomona is lousy," said John Laraby.

After listening to the complaints, Lepire said he would look into the charges.

In other business, the council withheld action for two weeks on a proposal to set preliminary boundaries for a redevelopment project area running the length of Holt Avenue from Garey Avenue to Indian Hill Boulevard.

Several councilmembers expressed concern that such a project area might be too large, even though the planning commission was recommending those boundaries.

The council approved a street widening project for Pomona Boulevard between Valley Boulevard and Roselawn Avenue. Approval of the project had been held up for several weeks because Cal Poly and Pacific State Hospital property is involved.

City Administrator Jerrold Gonce said that arrangements had been reached with both institutions regarding the elimination of the need to relocate fencing and assessments for street lights.

The council also presented awards of merit to Pomona residents Bobby Rizo and Richard Sandoval, both of whom won gold medals in boxing at the Junior Olympics national competition recently.

Death penalty contested here

Rehabilitation prospects neglected, lawyer claims

By BOB NAGEY
PB Staff Writer

A constitutional challenge to California's death penalty law is under consideration today in Pomona by Superior Judge Glenn M. Pfau.

Attorney Barry Plotkin claims that the state law calls for "a punishment that fits the crime but does not take into consideration the redeeming character of a defendant."

He maintains that this is contrary to the Eighth Amendment to the Constitution which strikes down "cruel and inhuman punishment."

There is neither state nor federal precedent for that challenge, and Plotkin has asked Judge Pfau to set one.

The case involves Michael David Perriera, an 18-year-old hitchhiker from Santa Maria, who has been found guilty of first degree murder by a jury in Pomona.

The jurors handed down the death verdict on the basis of evidence that Perriera and his companion, Randall Adams, planned to rob and murder the first motorist who picked them up — in this case Akiva Mohr, an Israeli immigrant in West Covina.

The jury decided that the murder was premeditated and that there were "special circumstances" that called for the death penalty. Now Judge Pfau's scheduled to pronounce that sentence.

Plotkin contends that even if the "special circumstance" provision of the law has been satisfied, the law itself is unconstitutional because it fails to take into consideration the background of the convicted person.

He claims that in the present case the defendant would have a good chance for rehabilitation.

The challenge apparently is the first of its kind to the new state death penalty. Plotkin said a similar case was taken to the state Supreme Court last month prior to a trial in San Jose but the justices declined to act on it until the trial had taken place.

Deputy Dist. Atty. Harold Hofman contends that the law is constitutional in requiring only proof of special circumstances. He therefore is asking Judge Pfau to pronounce the death sentence.

The trial of Adams, meanwhile, has been postponed pending the outcome of Judge Pfau's decision.

CHP rookies team up 21 years later to run Ontario office

Two California Highway Patrol officers who graduated from the same academy training class in Sacramento 21 years ago were recently reunited at the Ontario area office.

They are Capt. Jim Perkins, the new area commander, and Lt. Del Wayne, his executive officer.

Following completion of their academy training, Perkins was assigned to Barstow and Wayne to Lancaster.

And although they were transferred to other stations during the 21 year span, Perkins was back at Barstow and Wayne at Lancaster when both were directed to their Ontario stations.

Perkins began working with the patrol as a civilian in Bakersfield in 1954. He entered the academy in 1955 and served six years as a traffic officer in Barstow, six years as a sergeant in Vallejo, two years as a lieutenant in Barstow and then served as commander in West Los Angeles one year before moving back to Barstow in 1970.

The new commander has taught police science for 15 years in both Vallejo and Barstow and is completing work at San Bernardino State College on his bachelor degree in education.

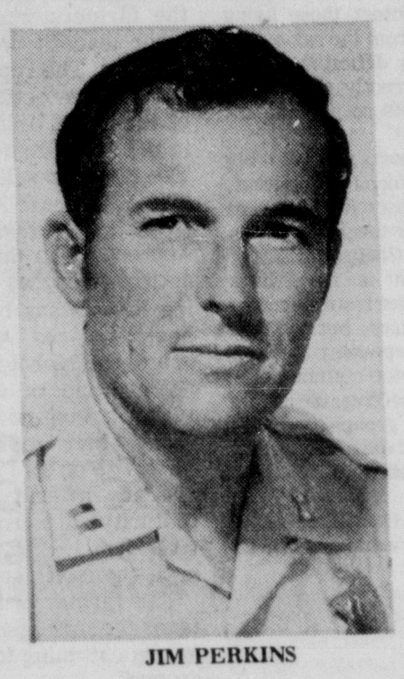
In accepting his new assignment, Perkins said he will seek cooperation of motorists in reducing the number of traffic accidents. "We realize a need for public help."

A major cause for freeway accidents is disabled vehicles left parked on the freeways. "We need to have motorists make immediate provisions to get them off the freeways. When people stop on the freeways, they put themselves in a position of being seriously hurt or killed."

Perkins said he is also working with Diamond Bar residents to curb a recent outbreak of vehicle accidents. Most of the accidents involve area residents and many are attributed to inattention by the drivers, he added.

Wayne served on the Pomona Police department from 1953 to 1955 and also worked as an auditor at the Lockheed Aircraft Service, Inc., in Ontario before joining the patrol.

He worked as a patrolman in Lancaster and Solvang before being promoted to sergeant in 1966. He transferred back to Lancaster in 1969 and then to Santa Barbara where he was promoted to lieutenant in 1972.



JIM PERKINS

DEL WAYNE

He returned to Lancaster in 1973.

Wayne graduated from Whittier High School and later attended Fullerton College. He is a past commander of an American Legion post.

Perkins recently purchased a home in Upland. He and his wife, Gerry, have three sons. Wayne still has his home in Lancaster. He and his wife, Linnea, have four sons.

Crime rate shows decline in Claremont

Criminal activity in Claremont decreased 13.2 per cent during 1975-76, Police Chief Charles Lines reported in his annual statement on crime.

"Overall, this past fiscal year, based on many statistics, appears to have been a very good year in combatting crime," Lines said.

"Hopefully, we can keep this momentum and trend intact," he said.

"Naturally, we are not going to be able to solve or stop all crimes," the chief said.

Lines said that crimes against persons — homicides, rapes, robberies, and assaults — remained "essentially static," while crimes against property — burglaries, larceny thefts and auto thefts — dropped 14 per cent.

Crimes against persons totaled 103 for 1974-75 as against 103 during the past fiscal year.

Crimes against property totaled 1,384 the past year, down considerably from 1,609 in 1974-75.

Lines said that the decrease in crime appears the result of a "total team effort; not just the Police Department, but various other agencies working diligently to reduce various situations that tend to lead towards crimes."

City Manager Norman R. King echoed Lines' views about a total team effort.

King noted that juvenile arrests for felonies, burglaries and drug laws fell from 202 in 1974-75 to 103 in 1975-76, although total misdemeanor arrests for juveniles rose slightly.

King said that an attempt to identify causes of either increases or decreases in criminal activity is speculation at best.

"However," he said, "I believe that at least one reason that the crime index and juvenile arrests have declined is attributable to increased efforts on part of the city and other jurisdiction directed at Juvenile crime prevention."

"Among the programs in which we are now heavily involved are the juvenile diversion program, the summer youth employment program, the use of the Claremont police station by the county Probation Department, and special efforts in regard to juveniles by several departments including the Police Department."

Crimes against persons included one criminal homicide, compared with two in 1974-75; three forcible rapes, up one from the previous year; 30 robberies, up from 22 in 1974-75; and 68 assaults, down from 77 the previous year.

Crimes against property decreased dramatically last year. Burglaries were down from 532 to 366.

Larceny thefts, any theft over $50 including bicycles, dropped from 1,016 in 1974-75 to 972 in 1975-76.

Auto thefts also decreased from 61 to 46.

In reporting that officers spent 1,794.5 hours in court in 1975-76 compared with 1,801 in 1974-75, Lines stressed that those figures do not reflect the time that an officer must be available if called to court on his day off.

Poly prof, student win mining award

A Cal Poly Pomona faculty-student research team will be given the Best Presentation Award by the Society of Mining Engineers of the American Institute of Mining, Metallurgical and Petroleum Engineers (SME-AIME) in September.

Gerald V. Henderson of Rowland Heights, Cal Poly associate professor of physics and earth sciences, and Jonathan David Rogers, a graduating senior, will be given the bronze plaque at a meeting in Denver.

The award was earned when the two competed against some 400 other entries submitted by researchers from major universities, industry and government at a February SME-AIME meeting in Las Vegas.

Their winning paper was entitled "Location and Suitability of Carbonate Material — for So2 Scrubbers — Western U.S."

City health center will offer shots

Immunizations are available for children and adults free of charge Wednesday from 5 to 7 p.m. at the Pomona Health Center, 750 S. Park Ave., Pomona.

Immunizations will be given against 10-day measles, rubella (three-day measles), diphtheria, tetanus and whooping cough.

Children must be accompanied by an adult or legal guardian and all previous immunization records should be brought to the clinic. A review of the records will determine which immunizations are needed by each person.

A high blood pressure testing clinic for adults will be held at the same time.

Cucamonga man is improving

Ronnie M. Ward, 20, of 9430 Tryon Road, Cucamonga, who was severely injured Sunday morning when his car ran off Glendora Ridge Road north of Claremont, was reported in fair condition today at San Antonio Community Hospital.

His condition Monday was listed as poor.

Montclair dwelling damaged by blaze

A fire of undetermined origin roared through the attic and roof of a single story residential structure Monday afternoon at 5617 San Jose St. in Montclair, causing an estimated $14,000 damage.

The fire was first reported about 4:05 p.m. when a resident at a neighboring home heard a burglar alarm and went to investigate.

When firemen arrived at the home owned by Mrs. Mary Sisco, who was away on vacation at the time, the fire had vented through the attic and flames leaped from the shake roof.

For 30 minutes two engine companies from Montclair and one engine company from Ontario battled the blaze before it was brought under control.

Montclair Fire Inspector Marc White said this morning that the fire may have started somewhere in the attic and quickly spread throughout the roof of the home. White said he and other firemen were to return to the home this morning and attempt to determine the exact cause. White said the fire was most likely "accidental".

San Diman killed in industrial mishap

An 18-year-old San Dimas worker was fatally injured when he was caught in a conveyor belt at a Vernon industrial plant Monday.

Police said Randall Leroy Duke of 301 San Dimas Canyon Road was caught in the conveyor equipment at about 11:15 a.m. He was pronounced dead on arrival at Southeast Doctors Hospital about an hour after the accident.

Duke was treated by Vernon Fire Department paramedics at the Container Corp. before he was taken to the hospital.

Library seeks volunteers

The Claremont Public Library at 208 N. Harvard Ave. is seeking volunteers interested in taking library services to people in local nursing homes.

Such volunteers to the HALO program will undergo a special training program.

Volunteers will work with the library staff to develop services catered to the needs of patients and staff of nursing homes. Typical activities will include bringing recreational reading materials to the nursing home to satisfy patients requests, reading aloud to patients, assisting with film programs, supplying large-print materials, and serving as a liaison between the library and nursing home.

More information may be obtained by phoning 621-4902 or by dropping by the library.

Tricyclist breaks 2 legs

A 6-year-old Pomona boy sustained two broken legs Monday when he rode his tricycle down the driveway of his home at 2260 Titus Ave. and into the path of an oncoming car.

Stephen Robert Burtoft was admitted to Pomona Valley Community Hospital pediatric ward after the mishap.

Police said the car was driven by James Allen Hamming, 28, of 12400 Cypress Ave., Chino.

Hamming said he was going between 10 and 15 miles an hour.

S.B. County supervisors boost their own pay 37%

San Bernardino County supervisors Tuesday granted themselves a 37 per cent pay hike, despite objections by many persons attending a public board meeting.

The pay boost will increase the salaries of the five members from $21,612 to $30,178, more than $8,500 a year.

The supervisors had requested several weeks ago that the County Administrative Office recommend board salaries for the fiscal year.

The office proposed the supervisors receive the same salary as the lowest paid other elected official. That was the county treasurer-tax collector who receives $30,178 annually.

The board vote was 4-1, with Supervisor Robert Townsend opposed. He proposed the supervisors' salary schedule be determined by the same method as used in setting the pay rates for other county elected officials.

This is by taking the average salaries paid the positions by five comparison counties — Orange, Ventura, Riverside, San Diego and Kern. This would be $26,642 per year for supervisors.

But when he made a motion to this effect, Townsend received support only from Supervisor Dan Mikesell of Ontario.

Another supervisor then offered a substitute motion to accept the Administrative Office's recommendation, which passed by a 4-1 vote.

Some 75 persons attended the five-hour hearing, with 19 of the 21 persons speaking to the issue opposing the pay hike amendments. Many of those opposed said the 37 per cent hike was much too high.

The same report also recommended pay increases for the justice court judges and constables. For the judges, they could receive up to a 20 per cent hike depending on their judicial work loads while the constables were given 10 per cent hikes.

In other matters, supervisors approved awarding the Jericho Outreach, Inc., Chino, $36,000 for the new fiscal year. The program provides a 20-bed residential treatment program for drug abusers.

They also authorized the purchase of a mini-pumper truck for the Chino Rural Fire Department to fight fires in rugged terrain and areas where regular pumpers can't go. Fire officials plan to use this on wild lan fires in the Chino Hills. The fire truck cost is $23,240.

And supervisors awarded a $116,242 contract to the J. Frank Artukovich Co., Newport Beach, to construct a new portion of the Magnolia Street storm drain in Ontario and Chino.

The project will include 1,461 feet of concrete pipe extending along Mountain Avenue from the Pomona Freeway to Philadelphia Street where it will connect to another drain system.

Bingo not all that bad

At the June primary election Californians passed Proposition 9 that legalized the playing of bingo.

The game has been conducted for years in church, fraternal and veteran organization social halls. Most of the time local law enforcement took the view that bingo was harmless and that attempts to stop it would be futile and unpopular in many instances.

Proposition 9 does not open up the possibility of widespread commercialized gambling. Authorities in each community have to decide whether they want to allow bingo playing.

Several city councils in the Pomona Valley are considering ordinances that would allow nonprofit groups to put on bingo games on their own premises for their members and guests. The ordinances will include control procedures and prohibit any game run for individual profit.

There are always going to be people who are opposed to gambling in any form and we respect them for it. But, isn't it about time we stop being hypocritical about a harmless pastime that will provide entertainment and a modest source of revenue for nonprofit groups that are finding it tough indeed in these days of inflation to keep their organizations solvent.

We doubt that bingo will become an open invitation to organized crime, or that children will go hungry because their parents are playing bingo. There are too many other places where one can lose his money faster, the race track and the stock market being two that come to mind right offhand.

Let it be

That move in Congress to promote George Washington to the rank of General of the Armies suggests a number of retroactive recognitions a grateful nation could accord the Father of His Country.

As everyone has been made aware by this time, Washington died a mere lieutenant general, which may have been the highest rank in his day but which has long since been superseded.

As Rep. Mario Biaggi, D-N.Y., author of the promotion bill which was unanimously passed by a House Armed Services subcommittee, pointed out, 'scores of military men outrank George Washington, a fact of history, which at long last must be corrected."

Well, as long as we are correcting history, and since Congress seems to have time on its hands, why stop there?

For instance, Washington was never awarded the Medal of Honor, though other generals were. In fact, as far as we know, Washington never received any medal at all, although he instituted the Order of the Purple Heart. Certainly the man who won the Revolutionary War deserves the nation's highest military medal as well as its highest military rank. Washington as a president, however will still be out-ranked by Franklin D. Roosevelt. Surely Congress ought to vote Washington at least an honorary third term.

As Biaggi himself admits, of course, nothing we can do can add anything to the luster of Washington's name. But actually, promoting Washington to General of the Armies would do more for John Pershing, the only military man to have been so honored, than it would do for Washington.

To make Washington the equal of Pershing is to make Pershing the equal of Washington, and with all due respect to the World War I hero, his services to the country were hardly on a par with those of Washington.

Let it be, we say.

Space litter

Satellite trackers of the North American Air Defense Command are marking 15 years of watching things go around in circles.

NORAD's Space Defense Center began functioning in Colorado Springs July 1, 1961, nearly four years after the Soviets launched the first satellite. Since then it has tallied a steady increase in man-made hardware in space.

The center's log currently shows a total of more than 8,000 objects that have been launched. Of these, 3,910 are still in space, while the rest have fallen out of orbit and disintegrated in the atmosphere. Only 862 of the still-orbiting objects are payloads (instrument packages). The other 3,048 are classified as debris, including rocket motors, tether cables and other assorted pieces of junk.

Although orbiting space objects return to the earth at the rate of about one a day, the gain in new satellites is greater than the loss, and NORAD analysts predict a continuing boom in space traffic. A satellite population forecast computed by NORAD indicates that in another 15 years, the in-space count will top 7,200 and that by the year 2000 there could be 10,000 objects of all shapes and sizes whirling about overhead.

The cost of Congress

Dear Editor:

I greatly appreciate your printing my recent letter in defense of the Congress of the United States. I submit herewith another letter with that same purpose.

Quite properly, people become concerned when they read that Congressional salaries have been increased by 5% or that Congressmen are allowed to charge trips back to ther home districts as public expense. But we need to get some perspective on these expenditures. For one thing, it is part of a Congressman's duty to keep in touch with the people he represents. He must maintain two homes and he must travel back and forth from Washington to his district if he is to do both his jobs effectively.

The important point, however, is to understand that the total cost to the taxpayers of the entire legislative branch of our government is about one billion dollars a year, or one quarter of one per cent of the total federal budget. The entire legislative branch of government gets one dollar of taxpayers' money for every $400 that is spent on other government activities. The cost of Congress is about the same as the cost of one trident submarine, half the cost of the excess cost overrun for the CA 5 airplane, and less than 1% of the amount of taxpayers' money which is spent for military overkill. If we are worried about heavy taxation, we ought to put most of our worries where they really belong.

Two senior groups

Dear Editor:

In a recent article columnist Jack Anderson spotlighted the National Alliance of Senior Citizens and its work.

While the article was basically fair, it omitted the key ingredient of the differences of philosophy between the Alliance and the labor dominated National Council of Senior Citizens.

The Alliance rates the Congress on issues of fiscal responsibility in government to protect those living on fixed incomes from the ravages of inflation caused by deficit spending. Mr. Anderson correctly states that the Alliance accepts no government funding.

The Council supports nearly all big spending issues before the Congress, accepting much of its funding from the taxpayers under the programs on which it rates the Congress.

Our organization is new, lives within a small budget from its members and contributors, but we feel strongly that we represent the best interests of the senior community.

With this in perspective, the difference between the groups becomes evident, and seniors may freely elect to join the organization of their choice.

Plumbers uncover leaks

WASHINGTON — Ex-President Richard Nixon's infamous plumbers, so named because of their efforts to plug White House news leaks, wound up their nefarious works with an investigation of congressional leaks.

Their purpose was to embarrass Nixon's detractors by portraying them as security risks. Instead, the plumbers found Washington so porous that they couldn't sort out all of the leaks. It was "difficult to prove," reported one of their investigators, that any given "leak came from the Hill."

The plumbers' secret findings have a special significance today in light of all the excitement on Capitol Hill over leaks. The House Ethics Committee, suddenly more concerned about leaks than ethics, has invested $150,000 to find out who leaked a House report to CBS newsman Dan Schorr.

Earlier, the committee stopped short of condemning Rep. Michael Harrington, D-Mass., for an alleged leak. And now the Justice Department is investigating Rep. Robert Leggett, D.-Calif., for allegedly leaking classified information to the South Koreans.

All this has got investigators chasing in dizzying circles. For Washington is a Yellowstone of leaks, bubbling here, spouting there, spraying out suppressed information.

The White House plumbers discovered three years ago that government information channels would spring leaks faster than anyone could plug them. The plumbers started out to investigate the leaks on Capitol Hill. Chief plumber David Young sought the help of the Pentagon. He contacted Fred Buzhardt, then the Defense Department's general counsel, who assigned Pentagon investigator W. Donald Stewart to ferret out the security risks in Congress.

Stewart reported back on Feb. 13, 1973, that Capitol Hill was a sieve but that many of the leaks originated in the downtown government agencies, including the Pentagon and the White House.

On the Hill, he found classified documents stored in ordinary cabinets, transmitted without the regulation double envelopes and scattered around offices for any visitor to see.

The Secretary of Defense hasn't given adequate instructions, Stewart suggested, "detailing what can be given or cannot be given to members of Congress or the procedures for transmitting classified documents."

No central index was kept at the Pentagon, he added, to show what classified information had been distributed to congressional offices. As a result, the military brass had no idea what classified data was loose on the Hill.

Stewart found that government agencies often shower congressmen with classified information they don't want. "Many situations arise," he reported, "where members of Congress desire to 'dump' unwantd classified material on military liaison officers on Capitol Hill."

In a lengthy memo, Stewart cited a number of lax security practices in Senate offices. But invariably, he found that leaks had their beginning in the State Department, Defense Department or White House.

For example, he investigated a New York Times leak on July 23, 1971, about the arms limitation talks. He reported that the New York Times correspondent, William Beecher, had been referred by a State Department source to the office of Senator Henry Jackson.

The FBI, joining in the probe, spoke to two of the senator's employees. They admitted discussing the subject with Beecher but denied revealing the classified details.

Observed Stewart: "Circumstantial evidence would tend to point the finger at Sen. Jackson, as we had learned that a State Department briefing was held in his office on subject matter with him prior to the publication." But there was no proof.

Stewart also suspected that the Senate Foreign Relations Committee had leaked information to reporters about U.S. bases in Spain. But before he could question the suspects, he was headed off by William Macomber, then an Assistant Secretary of State.

How soon they forget

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — There is no reason in this Presidential election to be confused about the man to vote for.

Never mind Jimmy Carter's expertise in standing foursquare on all sides of most issues, Ronald Reagan's talking tall in the saddle while shuffling softly, or President Ford's monotone of platitudes.

We have the record of what these three men did in office — which each of us can interpret for himself.

We have Carter's four years as governor of Georgia in print. We know what bills he pushed and which he fought and vetoed. We are able to evaluate the honesty or lack of it in his operations of how open his administration was. We can evaluate the degree of his success or failure in bringing the state bureaucracy to hell. We also have the evidence on how he managed his finances.

We have Carter's revealing book about himself, his record both as a Navy officer and peanut farmer.

Most importantly, we know the relative ability of the men he drew around him as the state's chief executive — the stature of men he appointed to judgeships, vacant offices and commissions. We have the same in-depth information on Ronald Reagan. Never mind what Reagan says now or what he said as governor. We have the information available as to what he did — the kind of appointments he made, the measures he fought and those he sponsored, the efficiency of his administration or lack of it, the degree of honesty, openness or secrecy of his operations.

We also have available the Reagan in the years before he went into politics — the entire role he played as a union leader in the motion picture world — what he fought for and against.

Mr. Ford's record, too, is an open book. His successes and failure as President or during his quarter century in the House of Representatives, where he was no wallflower, are there for all to read.

The Congressional Record, with its indexes spanning the years, gives the full picture of each man.

In the Congressional Record we have a considerable history of the two vice presidential candidates offered thus far, their votes on most issues of importance. Elsewhere, we have vote summaries carefully catalogued by organizations of the left, right and middle.

We also have detailed records of those who have donated to the current campaigns of the three Presidential candidates.

What more is there to know — except how each man treats his wife in private. We might even know that just by inference.

But for some reason we are not satisfied. We seek to pin each man down on whatever issue that seems dear to us. We do this knowing the words candidates speak are usually no key to how they'll act in the White House. Witness the change in virtually every man or woman you've listened to while campaigning — once he acquires office.

Or, more specifically, compare Carter as a gubernatorial candidate with Carter the governor, Reagan the candidate with Reagan the governor or Ford the congressman with Ford the president. It will be illuminating.

Just in jest

There is nothing more effective than a child to make one realize just how drastically inflation can undermine a family's economy. In visiting recently with a little four year old, I noticed she had lost her two front teeth.

"My goodness!" I exclaimed. "I'll bet the tooth Fairy left a dime under your pillow."

"A dime?" she questioned in amazement. "Don't you know that tooth fairies leave fifty cents?"

Farmers hit hard by strike

By EARL G. WATERS

Whatever the gains for cannery workers resulting from the recent strike, they can in no way offset the disastrous losses caused by it. As far as some of the workers themselves are concerned the gains weren't worth the effort and failed to make up for their own loss of income.

As for the canneries against whom the strike was directed the losses were minimal being largely the failure to realize some anticipated profits. These probably will be recovered by higher prices which will be blamed on a smaller seasonal pack and increased wages.

The real and innocent victims of the strike were the farmers whose crops rotted in the fields as labor leaders timed their action so badly for the growers. The reported damage of over $200 million is a disaster equalled only to those caused by floods or droughts. Unlike such events however, no relief in the form of government aid will be forthcoming. The farmers will take their beating unsung.

In this sense California farmers are different from many others elsewhere. At least those are who engage in the so-called specialty crops such as apricots, peaches and tomatoes. That type of farming has always been "high risk" for it has never been favored with any government support programs, upholding prices or paying farmers for not planting, or any other form of subsidization.

Yet, having no control over the ripening of such crops, they must be harvested and processed forthwith or all is lost. The profits at best, if there are any after costs of cultivating the crops to maturity, are usually slim. If the crop, for any reason, is lost there are no prospects for recovery until the next year.

The farmer will get no break on his property taxes for such a loss and many will be left with crop loans continuing to bear interest until the next time around.

The laws of the land would not permit someone to go unpunished who through stealing had inflicted such losses upon the farmers nor would it let anyone else go unscathed who caused them such damage. Yet, the labor leaders who headed the strike against the canneries bear no responsibility for the harm done to the innocent farmers as well as the consumers who will feel the ultimate results.

No one would argue the right of workers to organize and to strike against an employer for higher wages and better working conditions. In fact it was the dismal treatment of the workers by the canners which led to unionization. Since then both wages and conditions have made tremendous improvements. It is also understandable that the unions feel the time to strike is at the most critical stage for an employer.

Still, when such a strike reaches out to do great damage to those not directly involved in the labor dispute, it seems time for the government to intervene. The federal government has that power as President Truman demonstrated on several dramatic occasions. In this instance it was not invoked for inexplicable reasons.

Gov. Jerry Brown, acting with great rhetoric, promptly jumped into the middle threatening to lock the principals in a room until they settled. Unfortunately, there appears to be no authority for state intervention and no mechanism within state government to compel a cooling off during which work will continue while mediation brings a settlement.

Whether it is within the powers of the Legislature to enact laws to prevent reoccurrences is not clear. It may be that Taft Hartley and other federal laws have preempted the field leaving the states helpless to act. If that be the case maybe California's congressional delegation should get amendments permitting the states to establish their own authority to deal with local problems. How many union caused disasters can California farmers survive?

Moist and cool best for frog

DEAR DR. MILLER: Felix, my leopard frog, hates heat. In case it accidentally got hot for him, what would be too hot? — P.R.

DEAR P.R.: Felix fares well only when it's moist and cool. His body temperature must remain below 64 degrees Fahrenheit or he's had it.

DEAR DR. MILLER: What a bummer. It's B.B. (short for Beau Brummel). He's our two-year-old pet bull terrier. He was an angel as a puppy. Still is with people. The trouble is, he hates other dogs. Really. Kills them when he can! Has. Other dog owners have threatened to kill him or shoot him. Don't blame them in a way. Don't dare let him loose, and even on a leash he tries to get to other dogs to fight, and he means business. He's so sweet and gentle around people, it's an incredible nightmare. Can I ever train him so he won't fight the minute I turn him loose? — M.R.

DEAR M.R.: Don't count on it. Beau Brummel's breed was built and bred to battle — other canines. (Take advantage of his people-pleasing personality exclusively.) The better trained he is generally, the easier he'll be to handle, but it could be a fatal mistake ever to trust him completely around other dogs. His fighting instincts are too strong.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Will a dog freaked out by firecrackers ever get over it? — J.T.

DEAR J.T.: Just how far out has the dog gone? Firecrackers are first-class "freakers" for most species. To some degree, almost all animals fear sudden, loud noises. When a canine becomes and remains completely unstrung by such an encounter, psychiatric assistance of sorts may be required. Most such severely upset pooch patients can be brought around and conditioned to tolerate many startling sounds. But most canines can't comfortably abide firecrackers or similar noises. Since these noises are usually infrequent, simple avoidance usually handles the problem.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Is it a wild idea to feed my parakeet wild bird seed? Would it be healthier for him? Would he go for it? Do I dare risk it? — W.L.

DEAR W.L.: Why not take a chance? Give him a whole treat cup full besides his regular rations. He might just get a kick out of the variety it provides. Chances are, though, he'd waste a considerable quantity of it. Even if he should eat most of it, it won't tip his personality to the wild side, or in any other direction, for that matter. Basically, he would do better nutritionally on fresh standard parakeet seed offerings, so anything on the wild side should be a side dish.

Don't be part of monkeyshines

Dear Ann: Please help me settle an argument with my husband. We have agreed to abide by your decision.

Henry and I are planning a lovely dinner party in our home. One of his married business associates has a cutie-pie on the side. I say we should invite Mr. Business Associate and his WIFE, not the girlfiend. My husband says Mr. B. A. should be able to bring whoever he chooses — and he has already said he wants to bring the cutie-pie.

According to my husband, what this man does with his personal life is none of our business. I agree with my husband, but it would offend me to have a married man bring his mistress into our home. We will be issuing the invitations by phone soon, so hurry your answer. Who is right? — Battle Royal In The Bahamas

Dear Royal Battlers: You are — and don't let the so-and-so grind you down.

What Mr. B. A. does IS none of your business, but to offer hospitality to a married man and his cutie-pie cuts you in on the monkeyshines and gives your unspoken approval to the affair. Steer clear.

Dear Ann Landers: You slay me. Your upper-middle-class upbringing pops up in your column so often it's a hoot. Like again today — when you advised the woman whose husband takes his 28½ inches of their standard 57-inch bed out of the middle. (They used to sleep cuddled up, but now he accuses her of "leaning" on him.)

"Get twin beds," you advised. "But after 20 years the transition should be engineered with imagination and tact." Excellent counsel. But then you come up with the suggestion that the wife buy her husband a whistle to place on his bedside table and have it engraved with the message, "If you want me, just whistle."

What percentage of your readers can afford to engrave messages on ANYTHING these days? Do you know how much engraving costs per letter? It's time YOU woke up and smelled the coffee. — Daily Reader In Yuma

Dear Daily: Mea culpa, lovey. Right you are. For those who can't afford engraving, write the message on a piece of paper and tape it to the whistle. It doesn't have to come from Tiffany.

Dear Ann: I am a female, 29 years old, but I really look 19. I'm single, never been married, come from a wonderful family, and was brought up in a very loving atmosphere, with kind and understanding parents and five wonderful brothers and sisters.

Last October, I met the first person in my life who made me feel really alive. We started with the usual conversation. When he asked my age, I lopped off eight years and said "21," because I figured he was about 24.

We began going out a lot. After three weeks he confessed he was only 19. I couldn't believe it. When he said, "Age means nothing," I confessed I was 29.

We continued dating and I assumed everything was fine, because he never mentioned my age again. Eight months have passed and I really love this guy. I'm sure he feels the same about me. Last night I asked him when he wanted to get married. He said he could never marry me because of the age difference. I was stunned. What should I do? — Plus Ten

Dear Plus: Tell him goodbye. If he really loves you he'll be back. If he doesn't, better to find out now.

Do you feel awkward, self-conscious — lonely? Welcome to the club. There's help for you in Ann Lander's booklet, "The Key to Popularity." Send 50 cents in coin with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P. O. Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120.

Erma Bombeck

Short, but not a troll

Men are so smug.

Do you realize their hemlines haven't changed since the French Revolution? In 1795, their trousers dropped from the knee to the ankle and they haven't changed since.

Women's hemlines change every time I get a coat length that matches a dress length. This year is unbelievable.

I tried on a fall dress the other day that had enough material in it to slipcover New Jersey.

"They're wearing them long this year," said the salesperson.

"I can't find my feet," I said swishing the material around.

"You're supposed to wear the dress with boots."

"I am wearing boots."

"Face it!" she said dryly. "You're short."

"Short yes, but not a troll. I'll have to take about 15 inches off the hem."

"I think it looks stunning."

"I think it looks like a Russian street-cleaner. Aren't women complaining about this length?"

"No," she mused. "I don't believe we've ever had anyone as short as you before."

That did it. This letter of protest from a scant 5' 2" goes to clothes manufacturers everywhere.

Let it be known that there is an existing population on this earth that is short. Because of this condition (over which we have no control), we are forced to:

1 — Wear wedgies to avoid hemming nightgowns.

2 — Knot slips around our waist, giving rise to the speculation that we have a growth.

3 — Spend 9/10 of our waking hours standing like statues while someone "pins us up."

4 — Because of "shifting sands," we cannot necessarily wear a size 3 — which may match our height but not the bottom of our hourglass.

I am well aware of the fact that tall girls also have their problems, such as long sleeves that hit the elbow, evening gowns that hang midcalf, and belts that threaten to cut in half parts of the anatomy that defy separation, but if they want to complain, they're going to have to get their own column!

Dr. Lamb

Skin cancer most common

By Lawrence E. Lamb M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am very concerned about skin cancer. I know there must be several people who have it and think it's just a spot that will go away. That's what I thought about the spot on my back. It turned pink and I decided to go into the doctor's office and have it checked after ignoring it for a while.

He cut it out and sent it to the lab. It was skin cancer. The doctor said he got it all out and not to worry. I hope I can take his word for it. I was told the sun rays can cause skin cancer. Please tell us more about it and also about moles.

DEAR READER — Skin cancer is the most common of all cancers. Fortunately, with the exception of cancer from moles (malignant melanomas) they usually do not spread to other parts of the body. They only cause local tissue destruction and can be cured simply by cutting out all the area involved. That can become a fair sized area though if the cancer is neglected.

Those little scab-like formations of the face and back of the hands are often actinic keratosis, the name of the premalignant spots that develop from exposure to the sun. They should be seen by a doctor and removed. Sun rays are radiation. The ultraviolet radiation from the sun causes these spots and is the major factor in causing skin cancer. I am sending you The Health Letter number 7-10. Your Skin: Sun, Aging, Spots and Cancer. Other who want this information can send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope with 50 cents for it. Just send your letter to me in care of this newspaper, P. O. Box 326, San Antonio, TX 78292.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have rheumatoid arthritis. I would like your advice as to which part of the United States would be most beneficial to the arthritis. I live on the seacoast of North Carolina now.

DEAR READER — The most important consideration is not climate but the availability of good medical help and that usually means the availability of a rheumatology clinic or at least a specialist in rheumatology. Friends and relatives who will help and good medical help comes first.

If all other factors are equal I would vote for a warm, dry climate, although the evidence that such a climate is really beneficial for arthritis is meager at best.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I would like to know if it is considered common knowledge that when going into the hospital the operating doctor should be told personally by the patient about any medication being taken by him? Or should it be enough to tell the nurse who takes the medicine away what it is for and assume that the doctor will see the notation on the chart and will continue issuing it?

DEAR READER — Where human beings are concerned never assume anything. You can't even be sure that the information will get on the chart in time for the doctor to see it. My advice to all patients is to give the doctor any information they want him to know if they want to be sure he gets it.

If you are taking a lot of medicines write a list of them and be sure the doctor gets the list when he takes your history or examines you.

"I'm not wealthy. I'm a little teeny fellow. If anything, I'm custodian of these funds to do good with. If I just have that dime to call a funeral home and tell them to come and get me, I'll be happy."

"Of course we talked politics. The candor of these Americans is very remarkable. They are very direct."

On the opposite end of the spectrum from the finesse designed to give declarer an extra entry to dummy is the finesse taken for the sheer joy of finessing.

South ducked the first heart and won the continuation. Then he led a trump. East took his ace and shifted to the jack of diamonds. South promptly finessed his queen and the defense had three tricks in. Some five minutes later South had finessed successfully against West's queen of clubs and won the rubber.

"Pretty good guess," chortled South.

"An unnecessary waste of time, energy and guesswork," replied North. "The hand was unbeatable with no problems at all."

South started out well by ducking the first heart, but when East led the jack of diamonds, South should have gone right up with his ace. Next would come a trump to dummy followed by a ruff of the last heart. Then South would lead his queen of diamonds and claim his contract. It wouldn't matter which opponent held the king of diamonds. He would be caught in an end play.

Ask the Jacobys

Here is another question on revokes. Declarer leads a spade from dummy. He is informed by an opponent that the lead is in his own hand. He leads a heart. A Delaware reader wants to know if this is a revoke.

The answer is that it definitely is a revoke if he has a spade in his own hand. The revoke becomes established when an opponent plays to the revoking card.

New format for marriage

Men in their early 20s should marry women in their early 40s. Women in their early 20s should marry men in their early 40s. After 20 years, each of these couples should break up. And the men in their early 40s should marry women in their early 20s. And the women in their early 40s should marry men in their early 20s. At the top end, you'll note, would be men and women in their early 60s. These should marry one another. There you have it, a matrimonial utopia which calls for everybody to be married three times. Or so suggests a Southern Connecticut State College professor who thinks the foregoing format would greatly enhance the romantic lives of citizens now bored with their lot. Our Love and War man is giving the matter some study, though not much.

CHILD PRODIGIES

CAT LOVERS

A scholar, who has made a lifetime study of the world's radical philosopher-soldiers, has turned up a curious sidelight. Most of said revolutionaries have been cat lovers. The historical footnotes indicate the Soviet hero Lenin, for instance, devoted many a long hour on a rug where he played with his kitten. The list of such feline fancying fanatics is too lengthy to print here. One notable exception, though, deserves mention. Napoleon. He hated cats.

If you want to market something in Iran, better make sure you don't package it in blue and white. A cigarette maker had to pull a whole batch of blue-labeled smokes off the shelves there. They flatout wouldn't sell. The marketing men subsequently theorized it was because the folks thereabouts won't buy anything wrapped in blue and white, the national colors of Greece.

Of these geniuses, it's historically correct to report that mathematician Albert Einstein made frequent errors when he tried to add up restaurant checks, that writer Honore de Balzac was exceedingly poor in grammar and punctuation and spelling, and that orator Winston Churchill repeatedly undertook therapy to cure his lisp.

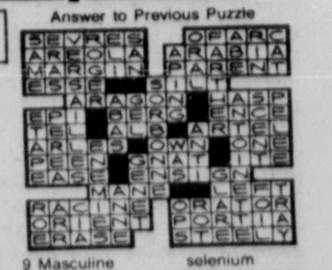
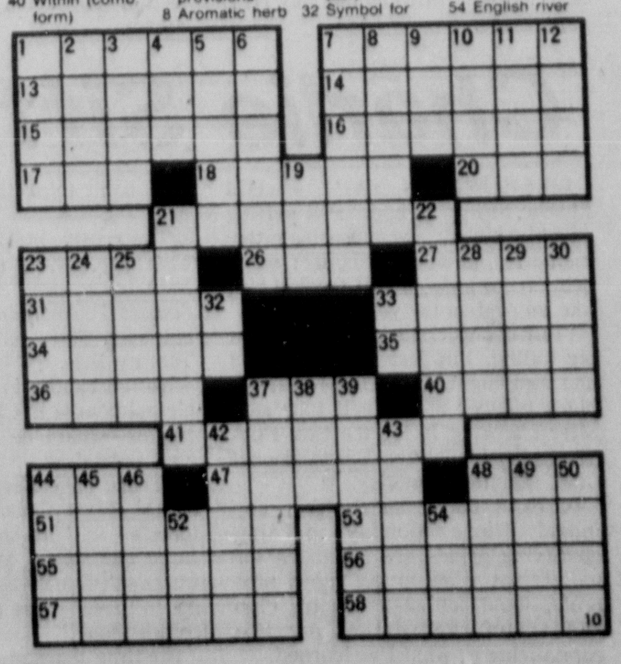
Answer to Previous Puzzle





Pirates' 'Candy Man' no-hits Dodgers

PITTSBURGH (AP) — It was "Candy Night" at Three Rivers Stadium and Pittsburgh Pirate lefthander John Candelaria gave everyone a treat.

The first 10,000 fans entering the stadium Monday night received a free candy bar in honor of the occasion and Candelaria followed that up by pitching a 2-0, no-hitter over the Los Angeles Dodgers.

"I've been dreaming about this since I was five years old," said the 22-year-old pitcher known as "The Candy Man" to Pirate fans. "I don't know if I'll come down. It's going to take a while to realize what's happened."

Only in his second major league season, Candelaria, 11-4, became the first Pirate pitcher to throw a no-hitter in Pittsburgh since Nick Maddox accomplished the feat at old Exposition Park in 1907.

He extended Los Angeles' losing streak to six games as he walked one batter and struck out seven. With the exception of the third inning, Candelaria retired the Dodgers in order.

A walk to Steve Yeager and two Pirate errors loaded the bases before Candelaria got Bill Russell to ground out to end the inning.

In the first inning, Al Oliver made a running grab of Davy Lopes' fly ball and Dave Parker made a shoestring catch of Ted Sizemore's sinking liner to snuff out possible hits.

Frank Taveras caught a line drive off Sizemore's bat in the sixth and Oliver ranged far to his left to make a running catch of Ron Cey's fly ball an inning later.

"If Cey pulled that ball a little more, it would have been in the seats," Candelaria said. "That was some catch."

The last out in the ninth was also the last threat to the nohitter. Russell blooped a fly to center that Oliver gloved after nearly colliding with Taveras at shortstop.

"I looked out and thought, 'That's a heck of a way to lose it,' " Candelaria said.

When Oliver made the catch, Candelaria jumped into the air and the celebration began.

His teammates made a path of white towels extending from the clubhouse door to Candelaria's locker and added a few candy bars along the way to keep up the spirit of "Candy Night."

Candelaria sat down, opened a can of beer and promised it wouldn't be his last.

"I'm gonna drink beer all night," he said with a broad grin. "I don't think anyone can blame me."

Before he left the stadium, Candelaria ducked into a photography darkroom adjoining the clubhouse where he called his mother in Staten Island, N.Y. She had seen the last three innings of the game on television.

"What do you think, mom?" he asked. "It's unreal. I still have time to close down a few bars."

Heavy storm halts football

By FRANK BROWN
By The Associated Press

The New York Jets' switchboard was flooded with calls during the afternoon while their temporary playing field was being flooded with rains from Hurricane Belle—a storm of such intensity that even the race horses at Yonkers and Atlantic City knew to go inside and stay there.

In consideration of their fans—not necessarily of George Steinbrenner's pet playing surface—the Jets postponed Monday night's scheduled National Football League exhibition game with the Giants at Yankee Stadium. With winds of 70 miles an hour forecast for gametime, not to mention the prospect of flooded highways and subways, "We just felt there was too much danger involved for our fans," a Jets spokesman said.

There was no argument from the Yankees, who said they were relieved to hear of the Jets' decision.

Steinbrenner, owner of the American League baseball team, has gone to great lengths to protect his turf in the past — preventing the Joe Frazier-George Foreman heavyweight fight from being held there last June, for example. But he had no hand in the postponement of Monday night's contest because the agreement for use of the city-owned stadium between the City of New York and the Jets does not give the Yankees power of cancellation over a football game.

That was not the case in the contract with the New York Cosmos of the North American Soccer League, whose scheduled home game at the Stadium tonight was threatened by Belle's fury. The Yankees, keeping in mind the rain's effect on their cherished field, are empowered by contract to cancel the NASL encounter as late as four hours before gametime.

"We're going to have to seriously look at things on the field and make a decision," said a Yankee spokesman.

Such was the extent of the heavy storm on the 1976 sports scene. The last time a football game was hurricaned out was in 1961, when the American Football League's Boston Patriots pushed a Friday night game back to Sunday afternoon.

It wasn't immediately known what would become of the Giants-Jets game, which had expected a crowd of 40,000 at $9 per ticket. The Cosmos were scheduled for tonight with Wednesday and Thursday as rain dates and another football game—Jets vs. Oakland—on Friday.

A rescheduling decision was expected today, the Jets said.

There also was rain in Philadelphia, where the Super Bowl champion Pittsburgh Steelers met the Eagles in another NFL preseason game, but that one went off without a hitch. The Steelers won 14-7.

Things did not work out as well elsewhere. Two Eastern League baseball doubleheaders in Connecticut drowned: Three Rivers at West Haven and Waterbury at Bristol. The finals of a $100,000 international tennis tournament at North Conway, N.H. were transferred to a private indoor court in Manchester, where Jimmy Connors defeated Mexico's Raul Ramirez 7-6, 4-6, 6-3. The World Team Tennis match at Nassau Coliseum between the New York Sets and Boston Lobsters was rescheduled for August 15, and the racing cards were cancelled for trotters at Yonkers Raceway and for thoroughbreds at Atlantic City, N.J.

And Team USA, the collection of hockey players with United States citizenship who will play in the international Canada Cup tournament next month, had to do without center Larry Pleau. Pleau, who plays for the New England Whalers of the World Hockey Association, owns a marina in Massachusetss and had to batten down his hatches for the storm.

Seattle cuts quarterback

CHENEY, Wash. (AP) — Rookier punter Skip Boyd and veteran quarterback Garry Keithley were released by the Seattle Seahawks Monday as the National Football League expansion club trimmed its roster to 61 players.

Keithley, obtained from St. Louis in the expansion draft, ran the team for seven plays during the third quarter Saturday in an exhibition game at Spokane with the Chicago Bears. He threw two incompletions and an interception on three passes.

Boyd, formerly of the University of Washington, did not punt in either of the Seahawks' two preseason games. His release leaves the punting job to another rookie, Rick Engles.

Keithley's departure reduces the Seattle quarterback corps to Jim Zorn, Neil Graff and rookie Steve Myer. Only Graff has had any NFL experience.

Roberts could not miss

COOPERSTOWN, N.Y. (AP) — Eddie Sawyer, the former college professor who managed the 1950 Philadelphia Phillies to the National League pennant, came here to see one of his Whiz Kids inducted into the Baseball Hall of Fame.

"Late in '48 I knew he'd make it big," said Sawyer following the induction of Robin Roberts and five others into the Hall of Fame Monday. "We brought him up from Wilmington (Del.) of the old Interstate League. One of our coaches, Cy Perkins, who knew pitching, watched him pitch two games and said, 'This kid can't miss.'"

Sawyer added, "He had ability and desire. He wanted to pitch every day. If we had 20 players like him there would have been no stopping us. He made my job easy."

The former Ithaca College professor said he was the one who started counting pitches thrown by his pitchers. "Robbie was smooth and fast with great control. He was remarkable. Many times he threw only 70 to 75 pitches a game.

"He was a good athlete," Sawyer said. "That's what it takes to be a good pitcher." Of the present day players, he compared Roberts with Jim Kaat of the Phillies, a hard worker who doesn't throw many pitches.

Sawyer pointed out that Roberts pitched six games in 10 days in 1950 as the Phillies pulled out the NL pennant on the last day (a loss would have forced a playoff with Brooklyn) and met the New York Yankees in the World Series.

Roberts won 20 and lost 11 in 1950, his second full season in the majors. He went on to post 20 wins or more the next five years despite playing for poor clubs. He won 286 games during 19 seasons and said he wasn't upset that he never reached the magic 300-victory mark. "I stayed in the majors until I was 40 and did the best I could. I'm just thrilled to be inducted here."

The big right-hander also pitched for Baltimore, Houston and the Chicago Cubs before calling it a career. He also lost 245 games and served up 502 home runs balls.

"I wanted to invite every player who hit a homer off me here today," said Roberts, now 49 and in the brokerage business in the Philadelphia area, "but they said Cooperstown wasn't big enough."

Another top right-hander of the 1950s, Bob Lemon, also was inducted after being elected by the Baseball Writers Association of America. Fred Lindstrom, third baseman for John McGraw's New York Giants, umpire Cal Hubbard and pre-1900 home run king Roger Connor—all voted in by the Veterans Committee—and outfielder Oscar Charleston—elected by the Negro Leagues Committee—were the other members added Monday, bringing the total to 157.

Lemon, who spent his career with the Cleveland Indians after failing to hit well enough to make it as an outfielder-third baseman, won 20 or more games seven times and helped the Indians win American League pennants in 1948 and 1954. He had a lifetime mark of 207-128.

"It's downhill from here on," said the 55-year-old Lemon. "I feel so good that I'd like to thank the guys (sports writers) who didn't vote for me."

Early Wynn, a Hall of Famer and a member of the Indians pitching staff with Lemon, was on hand for the ceremonies. It reminded Lemon of Wynn's motto: "I'd stick a pitch in my mother's ear if it would help us win a ball game."

Lemon said he accidentally did "stick one" in his mother's ear as a youngster while trying to demonstrate a curve which didn't curve. Lemon's mother, Ruth, 83, who came from California for the ceremonies, smiled at her son's recollection.

In a joking mood and admittedly not feeling too well from the induction eve party, Lemon said if he had a bad game, he never took it out on his family. "I always left it at a bar on the way home," he said.

Angels greet Boston; bring up Mike Overy

ANAHEIM — The Angels, who must get along without Bobby Bonds the rest of the season, open a six-game home-stand tonight against the Boston Red Sox.

The brief stand consists of three night games against the defending American League champions tonight through Thursday followed by a weekend series against the Milwaukee Brewers.

Gary Ross, who has pitched much better than his 6-13 record indicates, will be on the mound tonight against lefthander Rick Jones (4-1).

Frank Tanana will face Rick Wise Wednesday night followed by Nolan Ryan vs. Luis Tiant on Thursday.

Boston, which has had a rough time defending its A.L. title, trails the first-place Yankees by 11½ games in the East while the Angels are back in the West cellar after escaping it for one day over the weekend.

Bonds underwent successful surgery on his right hand Monday and has been placed on the emergency disabled list.

His place on the Angels' roster has been filled by relief pitcher Mike Overy, a 25-year-old from the Halos' Salt Lake City farm club. He had a 9-5 record with 10 saves and a 2.04 ERA.

The homestand will be featured by the annual Oldtimers Game on Saturday night. The weekend will also probably mean the final appearance of Henry Aaron at Anaheim.

Jan Metcalf wins opener

INDIANAPOLIS — Janice Metcalf of Claremont defeated Sharon Walsh of Northern California, 6-2, 6-7, 6-2, Monday in the first round of the $157,000 U.S. Clay Court Championships.

Most of the top-seeded players, including No. 1 seeds Jimmy Connors and Leslie Hunt, will begin action later in the week-long tournament.

Unseeded Jeanne Evert, younger sister of four-time clay court winner Chris Evert, won a first-round match against Pam Whytcross of Australia, 6-1, 6-4.

Chris Evert, defending champion, and many other top women players passed up this year's tourney because of World Team Tennis commitments.

Rams reduce daily drills

FULLERTON, Calif.(AP) — The Los Angeles Rams began one-a-day practices Monday after getting Sunday off as a reward for their 26-14 victory over the Dallas Cowboys.

Veteran cornerback Bivian Lee, acquired in a trade from New Orleans, joined the workout and Knox said he would announce a cut today to make room for Lee.

Guard Tom Mack sustained a broken bone in his right hand, but participated in the workout with a cast.

Knox again said he was pleased with the Rams' performance against Dallas, particularly since he used a lot of personnel.

He added he would announce today his quarterback plans for the club's first away game Saturday with the expansion Seattle Seahawks.

Charlie Sifford back to collect a debt

WASHINGTON (AP) — Old Charlie Sifford is back, still puffing on a black cigar and harboring bitter memories, seeking to collect some debts from a game that treated him like an orphan for years.

"I'm not worried about making a big killing. I'm just looking around and studying things," the 54-year-old black pioneer of the golf tour said after checking in for the 58th PGA Championship at the Congressional Club, starting Thursday.

"I can't cut it on the tour any more. Those Monday morning qualifying grinds are too much for me. I just want to get me a nice professional job at a country club and spend the rest of my life capitalizing on what I've learned.

"I don't think that's too much to ask."

The crusty, mustachioed native of Charlotte, N.C., qualified for the PGA by winning the PGA National Seniors Tournament in 1975, beating out such stars as Sam Snead and Tommy Bolt.

He currently is running a municipal course in Cleveland— Sleepy Hollow—where he works from 6:30 a.m. until dark.

"There have been some openings on the West Coast that I was interested in," he said, "but it's the same old song— looks like nobody wants ol' Charlie Sifford. I am willing to invest if the right proposition comes along."

Big-time tournament golf still has conscience pains over what it did to Charlie Sifford.

For years he was blacklisted, denied PGA membership under a "Caucasian clause" later ruled illegal. When he was permitted to play in 1960, he still ran into Jim Crow barriers in the Deep South.

"I couldn't play half the tour," he said. "Once I drove all the way from Greensboro, N.C., to Houston only to be turned away. Then I drove to San Antonio and they told me, 'You can't play here.'

"That was only half of my problems. Almost every golfer on the tour—good, bad and indifferent—had some sort of sponsorship. He didn't have to worry about where his next meal was coming from. He got clubs, balls and a lot of his clothing for nothing. But nobody was ready to give a black guy anything."

Charlie stuck in there for 10 years, starting in 1960, and always finished in the Top 60. He won the Hartford Open in 1960 and the Los Angeles Open in 1969 but never got an invitation to the Masters. Finally, when the rules were changed to make every tour winner eligible, it was too late.

Last year his tour earnings amounted to only $1,080.

"It's a tough grind out there," he said of the tour. "You not only have this flock of new kids coming out of college but you've got others who can't play golf but don't have a nerve in their body. They go out and pump that ball like crazy."

Sifford said he can't understand people writing Jack Nicklaus off just because he doesn't win a tournament every other week. "Remember he's gone to the trough 16 times to win major championships. He is no less a golfer. Competition is just better and a man with $3 million in business worries can't concentrate on much golf."

Charlie's favorites of the new crop are Ben Crenshaw and Jerry Pate. "You just look at these kids and know they are going to be great," he said. "Good swings, steady temperaments, no big heads. They're like Arnold Palmer. Don't come down the pike every day."

Host Lions take title

By PAUL CLICK
PB Correspondent

The Host Lions of Pomona American captured the Pomona City Senior Division title Monday night by downing the Elks of Pomona National, 4-2, at Ralph Welch Park.

"We played a good game tonight in winning the city title," noted Host Lions coach Tony Frias. "We've played a lot of tough competition in getting to the city championship game.

"We proved tonight that were the number one team by beating the Elks squad."

The Host Lions outfit defied all the odds in capturing the city title after a last-place finish in 1975. None of the city Senior Division experts picked Host Lions to win the title.

Host Lions got to the finals on the strength of an excellent defense and two top notch hurlers. It was something they didn't have last year.

Bill Aldrich pitched his squad to the title as he limited the Elks to just four hits. After giving up a first inning run, he settled down and retired 14 men in a row before allowing a double to Bob Eckl in the sixth inning.

Aldrich in picking up the victory ,fanned seven and walked one. His pitching performance was saved by a tremendous sliding catch by leftfielder Guy Bracy. It turned out to be an important catch as it saved the game for Host Lions.

Host Lions led 2-1 in the sixth as the Elks made a serious bid to take the lead. With runners at second and first and two out, Keith Nelson slamed a fastball to leftfield. Bracy raced in and made a sliding one handed catch of the sinking blast. He almost let it get away as it stuck in the top of the glove's webbing.

Without the great defensive catch Pomona National ties the score and had the go-ahead runs in scoring position. Instead of sending another batter to the plate, the Elks were forced to go out and play defense.

Host Lions jumped off to a quick 1-0 lead only to see Pomona National knot the score at 1-1 in their first inning at bat. Guy Ryan broke the 1-1 deadlock in the fifth as he rammed a single to right-center and scored on a grounder to second.

The Host Lions outfit salted away the contest in the seventh as they increased their lead to 4-1. Ryan singled and scored on Aldrich's triple to dead center-field. The outfielder made a valiant try for the ball but couldn't get to it as it hit the turf. Aldrich scored on a ground ball to the shortstop off the bat of Rich Davis.

The Elks squad rebounded with a run in their seventh inning at bat but they were not able to bring the tying run up to the plate. Aldrich successfully thwarted the Elks comeback attempt.

Host Lions' seven hit attack was paced by Albert Lobretto, Ryan and Aldridge. Each batter collected two hits. Davis drove in two of Host Lions' four runs.

The Pomona National Elks were paced by Ron Lawson who was two-for-three with the wood. Mike Krumwiedi had a triple and Eckl knocked out a double for the only two extra base hits recorded by the Elks squad.

Dr. Jobe is the specialist who operated successfully on pitcher Gary Nolan, Gullett's roommate.

Gullett called the examiniation a "precautionary thing" and said he did not expect Dr. Jobe to find any serious damage to the bone or shoulder joint. The left-hander is 7-3 this season with a 3.29 earned run average. He has worked in only 16 games, covering 32 innings.

SEATTLE (AP) — Mel Stottlemyre, the former New York Yankee pitcher whose 11-year career was stopped by a sore arm, has been named "organizational" pitching coach for Seattle's American League baseball expansion franchise.

MONTREAL (AP) — Defenseman Bobby Orr checked in and out of Team Canada's training camp Monday but Managing Director Sam Pollock says he hopes to have the Chicago Black Hawks star back by next Monday.

Orr and 29 other players reported for medicals and team pictures Monday, then Orr headed back to Toronto.

Orr, who signed a multi-year, $3 million deal with the Black Hawks of the National Hockey League earlier this summer, will continue exercises on his surgically repaired left knee.

"He'll be putting pressure on the knee for the next four or five days," said Pollock. "If everything goes well, he should be back with us next Monday."

NEW YORK (AP) — Howard Davis, the Olympic gold medal winner from Glen Cove, N.Y., will receive the Val Barker Cup as the outstanding boxer in the recent Montreal competition at the 51st Boxing Writers Association Dinner Friday night.

DEL MAR, Calif. — Mercy Dee, $8.40, crossed the wire a nose in front of longshot Effusive and won the $15,000 Freedoms Foundation at Valley Forge Purse at Del Mar Race Track.

Summer loop flourishing

By BRENT SHYER
PB Correspondent

LOS ANGELES — Paul McCraken, John Laskowski, Wally Walker, and John Roche may not all be household sports heroes as yet, but at the Southern California Pro Basketball Summer League these players are becoming well known.

The Summer League may not be able to offer basketball fans the top stars in the Nationalal Basketball Association but if you are interested in seeing the future talent crop of the NBA, it might be worth your while to take in a couple of games for a reasonable price.

Games are played at Cal State Los Angeles' Gym four nights a week. Tripleheaders are played on Tuesday, Saturday, and Sunday nights starting at 5 p.m., while doubleheaders are played on Friday evenings beginning at 7 p.m. until August 24. The championship game is scheduled for August 28, and an All-Star contest will be played the following night. Both games start at 9 p.m.

Admission is only $2 for adults and $1 for children under 12.

The Southern California Pro Basketball Summer League is now in its sixth year and, although there are two Eastern Summer Leagues, it is the only off-season loop that is sanctioned by the NBA. The league is sponsored by the Adidas Shoe Company, which provides needed equipment for the players, including uniforms and footwear.

NBA clubs pay only a nominal fee of $2,000 to be able to have players participate in the league. That money alone cannot fully meet the expenses that the league incurs.

The Executive Director and President of the Summer League is Dick Marquis, who admits that things are not all perfect with the League. "Our operating expenses run us about $45,000 a year," he said. "We've lost about $10,000 a year on the average, but this year we might lose about $20-30,000."

Marquis, who heads a company called Video 1 which tapes sports events, is an active sports promoter and dearly treasures the league. However, it wouldn't be easy for anyone to lose that much money per year without stopping such an operation, but apparently Marquis has great love for the game and thinks that the league is worthwhile for the players and fans.

Marquis said that if NBA teams really believe that the off-season league is working, there probably is no reason why the money coming from the league could not be increased.

The total attendance last season was about 30,000 or an average of close to 1,000 people per game.

There are eight teams in the Summer League including two combined squads. The combination teams are the Detroit Pistons & Boston Celtics and the Milwaukee Bucks & Portland Trail Blazers. The remaining clubs include the Phoenix Suns, Los Angeles Lakers, Atlanta Hawks, Chicago Bulls, NBA Rookies, and NBA Pros.

The players are either veterans of the NBA, rookies, draft selections, or free agents and they all get paid by their individual club who owns the rights to them.

The off-season action keeps the players in shape and is actually a pre pre-season league. Many of these athletes will be sitting on the bench of an NBA team come next October, but they are staying as sharp as possible and will be ready to play when the time comes.

Maybe one of the reasons that the Phoenix Suns made such an incredibie rise to the finals of the NBA championship playoffs last year is due to the off-season league.

The Suns brought in their entire squad to play in the league and the players were able to get used to the team concept way before the season ever began.

Most of the teams are coached by the assistant coaches from the NBA team they represesent. For instance, the Lakers are currently being coached by Larry Creger.

As far as the league is standing right now, the Hawks, the Celts—Pistons, and the Suns are all battling it out for the lead. The leading scorer is McCraken, who plays for the Hawks and has set a 22.8 scoring pace per game. Don Ford of the Lakers is third in the league in scoring with 23.2 ppg and is the leader in free throws at 94 per cent.

Roche, also of the Lakers, was averaging seven assists per game. Walker is one of the top Portland rookies and Laskowski is a good 6'6" forward for the Bulls.

Attendance up for pro soccer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The North American Soccer League is in the final week of its 1976 schedule with unofficial attendance figures showing a sharp rise of interest in the professional game in the United States.

Last season, the San Jose Earthquakes set a season record of 197,194 fans in 11 games, 95 per cent of its stadium capacity. The league, over-all, lured more than 1.8 million people to its 20 stadiums across North America.

This year, six cities have already broken the San Jose record and total attendance league-wide has passed the 2,220,000 mark.

Seattle had the highest attendance figure with 284,712 fans turning out for their 12-game home schedule at the Kingdome, an average of 23,726. Also among the cities surpassing San Jose's 1975 record were Minnesota, Portland, New York, Tampa Bay and San Jose—all but Tampa well over the 200,000 mark.

The big surprises of the year have been the Minnesota and Dallas teams. Minnesota, which took over the ailing Denver franchise this year, has drawn 235,390 to 11 nome games, an average of 21,399.

In Dallas, a hotbed of American-style football, the Tornado has drawn 152,387 in 11 games, up 101,355 over the same span last year.

The individual league-game record of 35,620, set last year in Washington, D.C., was broken twice in a week with 42,611 in Tampa on June 6 followed by a 46,164 gathering in Minnesota three days later.

Another record for professional soccer in this country was established at an exhibition game in Seattle when a sell-out crowd of 58,128 turned out to watch the Sounders against the New York Cosmos.

However, the NASL is not without its problems. The dropoff after these seven teams was drastic. Vancouver and Los Angeles likely will exceed the 100,000 figure before the season ends.

But eight teams—Washington, San Diego, Philadelphia, St. Louis, Chicago, Rochester, Toronto and San Antonio—have drawn only in the 50,000-66,000 range with four showing increases over 1976 figures.

Hockey stays in San Diego

TORONTO (AP) — The San Diego Mariners have been saved from World Hockey Association extinction by Ray Kroc, the millionaire founder of a worldwide hamburger chain and owner of a National League baseball team.

Kroc, a San Diego businessman who founded McDonald's and owns the San Diego Padres, purchased the Mariners from the WHA for an undisclosed sum Monday.

The deal, completed at the league's annual meeting, ended speculation of the demise of the financially troubled club. The Mariners had been without an owner since Baltimore businessman Joe Schwartz missed a payroll and defaulted on the franchise last March.

Larry Gordon, WHA executive vice-president, said Kroc's lawyers told the day-long meeting that the Mariners would continue to operate out of the 13,039-seat San Diego Sports Arena.

Gordon said that Kroc has reached a verbal agreement with the owner of the Sports Arena, Vancouver-born millionaire Peter Graham, and would sign a lease today in San Diego.

Ben Hatskin, chairman of the board and chief executive officer of the WHA, announced that the league had approved the transfer of Cleveland Crusaders to St. Paul, Minn., and that Dr. Charles Allard had taken over control of the hockey operations of the Edmonton Oilers.

Hatskin said the franchise shifts and new ownerships would put the league on the strongest foothold in its four-year history.

Hatskin said the Cleveland franchise will operate out of the 15,705-seat St. Paul Civic Center, former home of the Minnesota Fighting Saints.

In other business, the WHA realigned the league into two geographic divisions, the Eastern and Western divisions, and adopted new rules to curb violence as recommended by a league committee and the World Hockey Association Players' Association.

Colt Divisional playoffs to open

Action is scheduled to get underway Wednesday in the Colt League West Coast Divisional playoffs at Ontario's John Galvin Park.

Games to be played Wednesday night in the double-elimination tournament have West Covina (the Coast Regional champion) meeting Hilo, Hawaii at 6 p.m. and Riverside American (the South Regional titlist) squaring off against host team Ontario National in a 8:30 p.m. nightcap.

National, as the host team, is automatically awarded a berth in the playoff. The other four teams involved all won Colt Regional titles over the weekend.

Two more games are on tap for both Thursday and Friday evenings. Single games will be played Saturday and Sunday. The winner of the Divisional will advance to the Colt League World Series.

Riverside American rallied to win two games from Mt. Helix View of La Mesa on Sunday to capture the South Regional at Galvin. American is one of the co-favorites to win this week's Divisional title, along with Coast champs West Covina.

West Covina, a traditional Colt League power, was most impressive in winning the tough Coast Regional. W. C. swept through four straight games, downing host Long Beach 12-0 on Sunday to advance to the competition at Galvin.

VCT to hold play tryouts

Valley Community Theater will hold auditions for "The Hot 1 Baltimore" at the theater, 132 E. Third St., Pomona, from 1 to 5 p.m. Saturday and Sunday.

The Lanford Wilson drama has parts for eight men and seven women ranging in age from 16 to 80.

The play will be directed by Michael Ross, a graduate of the American Academy of Dramatic Arts. He has appeared in more than 50 productions, including "Fiddler on the Roof" and "Inherit the Wind" at VCT.

Information on the tryouts can be obtained by calling the theater, 622-6954.

Candy tells eerie tale

By DICK KLEINER

HOLLYWOOD — (NEA) — The only problem with Candy Jones' story is this: do you believe it?

As she tells it, and as it unfolds in a book called "The Control of Candy Jones," it's a frightening story of experiments the FBI and the CIA conducted on her. Candy claims that through hypnosis and chemotherapy, she was branwashed and manipulated and made to perform missions for those agencies over a 12-year period.

Both she and Donald Bain, who wrote the book, recognize the big problem with the story is credibility. Even Bain didn't believe it for the first four months he worked on the project, but he says he does now.

Was she really brainwashed and tortured? Did two doctors really feed her drugs in orange juice? Is there really a second Candy, a split personality who emerged to do the jobs — and, she says, sometimes still emerges?

Candy Jones, for many years, was one of New York's top models. She also became an actress and an entertainer. Currently, she is married to Long John Nebel and co-hosts his big nighttime New York radio show. Her credentials are good, but the story is still incredible.

If you read it as a story, it doesn't really matter if it's true or not. (And that's how 20th Century-Fox considers it, because they've bought it for a movie.) It's only if you consider the political implications that it spooks you.

Candy says the frightening aspects are still continuing. She claims to still receive mysterious telephone calls.

"Just the day before yesterday," she says, "there was a voice on the phone. It said, 'Tell Miss Jones she has a doctor's appointment,' and hung up."

She also says there are bruises on her body, from an alleged torture session in Taiwan, which still recur on her chest and feet.

It makes a convincing story. Read it, and make up your own mind.

Olivia set for 'Airport'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Two-time Oscar winner Olivia de Havilland is returning to films as part of the stellar cast in Universal's "Airport 1977."

The actress will portray an art patroness who is a passenger on a luxury 747 that disappears in the Bermuda Triangle. Also in the cast: Jack Lemmon, James Stewart, Lee Grant, Brenda Vaccaro, Darren McGavin.

Flutist to do triple

Flutist Jean-Pierre Rampal will return to Hollywood Bowl at 8:30 Thursday night in the triple role of conductor, soloist and chamber music player.

As conductor, Rampal will be making his Los Angeles Philharmonic debut leading the orchestra in Mozart's overture to "The Impresario" and Beethoven's Eighth Symphony.

The world-acclaimed Frenchman will display his virtuosity as soloist with the Philharmonic in the Vivaldi Flute Concerto in A minor and in Cimarosa's Concerto for Two Flutes in which he will be joined by the orchestra's co-principal flutist, Anne Diener Giles. He will conduct these works, also.

Rampal will also be heard in Copland's Duo for Flute and Pinao, with the orchestra's pianist, Zita Carno.

Southern boogie

ZZ Top at the top

By STEPHEN FORD

"Easterners don't like Texans automatically because they think of us as too flashy," Dusty Hills of Texas rockers ZZ Top explained recently. "We have the reputation for flaunting everything. If we get a limousine, it can't be just a limousine, it's got to be flashier, y'know, like a solid gold cigarette lighter inside."

The irony of Hills' plaint surfaces when ZZ lead guitarist Billy Gibbons follows that with an animated description of a '55 Thunderbird he recently purchased, one formerly owned by Dean Martin. Planning to add it to his stable of five other T-Birds, he's having this one reconditioned by legendary Los Angeles designer "Nudie" of Hollywood. It will have authentic longhorns on the hood and the car's horn will resemble the mating call of a steer.

And ZZ wonders wy Easterners consider Texans flashy?

As one of the first and certainly most successful Southern boogie bands (they'll gross more than $20 million for their current worldwide tour, $5 million more than the Rolling Stones last tour), ZZ views the emergence of Southern bands with small trepidation. If there's any fear it's over the image and not the crown.

"I'm afraid Southern boogie has become chic," Hills says stroking his reddish beard with a beefy hand. "It's like reggae music, everybody's doing it now."

If trends follow their ordained cycle, does that mean the fire beneath country boogie could go out?

ZZ TOP

"You never know how long you're gonna last," Hills says. "I remember seeing those old George Raft movies when he was at the top of the heap and making good money. Now I hear he's living off the Actors' Guild. I guess he never thought he'd come to that. Who does when you're on top?

"We've tried to look ahead. We've made investments. I hear about how much money ZZ is making and I can tell you that we might be making that much but I certainly don't have any million bucks sitting in some bank," he says.

It's a common practice, an escape device if you will, for us all to wistfully reminisce about earlier years when the present seems a brutal ordeal.

Britons surveying their economy must surely be wondering what their nation ever did to deserve this. A sociologist might conjecture it could be that same gloom that is fueling the spread of obsolete fads revived from England's more prosperous days.

Within the past year, England contracted a second epidemic of Beatlemania nearly as severe as the first one more than decade ago.

Joyce Brothers

Override objections

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: Do you feel that there's a time when people should no longer consider marriage? I'm in my mid-70s and I'd really like to get married again. I've found a woman who likes me and seems to share my views but she's also in her early 70s. Neither of us wants to do anything foolish because we both have children. On the other hand, we're sociable people and we get lonely. — R.K.

Dear R.K.: I'm a firm believer in the institution of marriage and the only restrictions in age, I feel, should be made to protect the very young. Even so, some youngsters are able to make their relationships work and beat the high odds of failure for teenage marriage.

Because we're a youth-oriented culture, there are many absurd beliefs about againg which, unfortunately, are accepted by many old people themselves. Studies have shown there is no set age when healthy men and women lose interest in love or sex. This is something that lasts as long as life lasts. If an individual is in moderately good physical health, there's no reason why he shouldn't enjoy a full, active life, including marriage and all that goes with it.

Sometimes, however, when older people with families marry, they find they have to turn away from their adult children temporarily, and they must simply override the objections which often stem from jealousy or misunderstanding.

You are an independent individual and neither you nor this woman should allow yourselves to be victims of your children's prejudice. Discuss it with them, but be prepared for arguments that you may simply have to ignore. Eventually, they will forgive you, and accept your marriage. This probably won't take too long, if they are mature and adjusted themselves.

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: I've a family of five and almost all of them are grown. My youngest is a 16-year-old boy. My other youngsters showed a marked interest in sex at that age and even dated at school functions. This boy, however, seems totally turned off and my husband thinks this may indicate that he's homosexual or has some serious problems. He can't imagine any male not rushing after members of the opposite sex. Any comments? — L.A.

Dear L.A.: Don't rush him, don't make him feel odd or unusual, and respect his needs for privacy in sexual matters. There's no specific age when all young people become breathless about sex. This is just as much an individual matter as whether or not a child prefers the public library to the athletic field.

Before a youngster can be attracted to a member of the opposite sex, he must first establish his own sexual identity. This happens at different times for different individuals. There is some evidence that boys who are slower to date and to feel at ease with the opposite sex are more sure of their sexuality as males when they become adults. If a sexually insecure boy is pressured by his family to date before he's emotionally or physically ready, he is apt to spend many years trying to prove to himself and others how "masculine" he is.

The best thing parents can do for their children is to treat each child as the separate individual he or she is. Allow your son to develop and grow at his own pace without pressure, and without needless comparison to his brothers and sisters.

Boys Republic Aux. installs new officers

Mrs. Ren A. Meader of Arcadia has been installed as president of the Pasadena Auxiliary of Boys Republic, succeeding Mrs. John J. Paulson of Altadena. Installation took place at the organization's annual luncheon recently at the Huntington Sheraton Hotel.

Through a series of 121 sales, the group has raised more than $1 million for capital improvements and special programs at the school. The next sale is scheduled for October 16.

In addition to the seating of new officers, the auxiliary honored several long time members, awarding them appropriate recognition pins. The group included: Mrs. E. E. Allen, 50 years; Mrs. Harold Hook and Mrs. Elmer Wilson, 35 years; Mrs. William Norwood, Mrs. Laurence Atwood, Mrs. Arthur Baum, Mrs. Warren Flynn, Jr., Mrs. Robert Hasting, Mrs. E. OUR REG. 25.99 18.88

Introducing a new prescription service... and it's free!

It's Value Fair Family Prescription Record Plan. A sensible way to keep the record straight on your family's prescription and general health history. Here's how it works. Once you enroll, each time our pharmacist fills a prescription for you the following information is recorded and kept on file: prescription number, date, physician, drug and strength, quantity, retail price, refills, family member. Other information provided by you or your physician includes chronic diseases and allergies (if any) and the over-the-counter drugs taken most regularly.

What are the benefits?

1. The pharmacy record enables our trained pharmacists to spot a possible adverse drug interaction or allergic reaction and inform you of it. For example, something as common as aspirin should not be taken with certain prescription drugs. And certain prescribed medicines are incompatible with others. By checking your record each time a prescription is filled, the pharmacist can identify a potential problem...and avoid it.

2. The plan protects you and your family from overdosage. Some prescriptions should not be filled too often. We keep count for you.

3. The record can be used by a hospital or physician in case of emergency. You'll be given an I.D. card which includes the name and phone number of the pharmacy and this statement: My pharmacist has a complete record of the medication I am presently taking or that has been dispensed to me.

4. The record is useful for insurance and income tax purposes. It is much more accurate and convenient than saving (or losing!) a year's worth of prescription receipts.

Give your family the protection of this new free service.
